YFCA board sets fundraising plan

TWIN FALLS — Fundraising activities ranging from a "Lost Wages Night" to a benefit dance are among plans to combat $250,000 in Magic Valley YFCA debts.

Those projects and door-to-door solicitations are firm plans among a spate of proposals discussed Wednesday night at a YFCA fundraisers' meeting attended by about 35 persons.

Proposals targeted for preliminary legwork Wednesday include a telethon and a public barbecue. Also discussed as means of reopening the YFCA building which was closed April 6 because of financial problems, were programs whereby businesses would donate part of a day's income to the YFCA, and civic clubs would challenge each others' donations.

The Twin Falls Optimist Club hopes to hold its "Lost Wages Night" sometime this spring, said club spokesman William Kyle. The event will allow participants to trade cash for play money to be used in card and other games. Later in the evening, major prizes will be auctioned.

Rick Carr said Modern Woodmen of America will hold a May 29 benefit dance at the Elks Club, which has donated use of its facilities. A band has agreed to work free of charge, and the Modern Woodmen of America home office will match proceeds up to $500, Carr said.

Willie Scheel, temporarily in charge of YFCA fundraising, said the overall plan to raise money will involve efforts of three or four influential businessmen who will make one-to-one contacts to solicit substantial donations. Prospective holders of those key slots have been contacted, Scheel said, but names will not be announced immediately.

Scheel also said the YFCA is not yet releasing the target sum of money which must be in a "Save the Y" trust account at Twin Falls Bank and Trust by a July 31 deadline. As of Wednesday, the account had $2,335 in unsolicited contributions, she said. Another account for persons who wish to pledge contributions to be given in the next three years also is open, she said.

Thos attending the meeting also heard a fundraising outline proposed by Chuck Upton, former executive director of the YFCA. Upton, intensively involved in previous YFCA fundraising drives, said generating $250,000 will require 330 persons contacting 1,975 potential donors. Major gifts should include one in the amount of $10,000 and three of $5,000 each, he said. The fundraising strategy should include six divisions and 54 team captains, he added.

"One of the most important pieces of literature we need to develop is the case for support," Upton said.

A slim majority of persons who commented Wednesday on an earlier proposal that the YFCA hire a professional fundraiser said they do not favor such a move.

YFCA Board member Zoe Ann Shaub said that if volunteers can't raise an adequate amount of money in 90 days, that will indicate the community doesn't want a YFCA facility.

Grain ban is ended?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has tentatively decided on a partial lifting of the grain embargo against the Soviet Union as a result of the easing up of pressure on Poland, CBS News reported Wednesday night.

CBS correspondent Leslie Stahl reported White House officials plan to announce late Friday "a phased lifting with built-in incentives designed to encourage the Soviets to behave themselves over Poland."

A final decision is expected to be made by Reagan at a White House meeting with top aides Thursday, the network reported, although the president approved the "general concept" last week.

CBS reported the Soviets will be allowed at first to purchase more wheat, "perhaps 2 million bushels" and more soybeans. But more corn purchases will not be permitted because drought-ridden corn farmers are "not confident they will have a normal crop."

The network said government lawyers are now working on developing new export licenses to accommodate the limited grain sales to Russia.

Acting White House press secretary Larry Speakes said no decision had been made on the matter, and the State Department declined comment on the report.

But there were meetings at the White House Tuesday between Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Agriculture Secretary John Block.

During the presidential campaign, Reagan opposed the embargo that was imposed by President Jimmy Carter in retaliation for the Dec. 27, 1979, Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Reagan said the action put an unfair burden on the nation's farmers. But since taking office, he has said lifting of the embargo might send the "wrong signal" to the Soviets while they are engaged in foreign subversion.

Reagan has been urged by a "sense of the Senate" resolution backed by farm state Republicans to lift the embargo. A spokesman for the sponsor of that resolution, Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, said Wednesday night the senator had not been "formally" notified of such a decision.

Jerome Junior High School Principal Bill Emerson directs sixth grade students into the school prior to an early dismissal Wednesday

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — Schools closed early Wednesday because of a walkout by most of the Jerome School District's 120 teachers to emphasize a salary dispute.

Teachers and school officials agreed little learning took place and students were dismissed shortly after noon.

"We warned them there would be discipline problems and there were," said teachers' spokesman Craig Ainsworth as students on motorcycles circled the high school parking lot and other students milled around during the noon hour.

Ainsworth said a few teachers set up informational pickets early in the day, but removed them after charges that they were obstructing education in the schools.

Approximately 100 Jerome High School students did not show up for classes, said Principal Jerry Diehl. The remainder were generally well-behaved, he noted. High school students spent the morning in an auditorium assembly that included a fund-raising auction for a choral group's upcoming trip.

Figures on absenteeism at other Jerome schools were not available, although two elementary buildings reported lunch ticket sales were close to normal.

A student was forceably removed from Jerome Junior High School grounds after a disturbance that included a broken window and two up-ended garbage cans, district Superintendent Percy Christensen confirmed. Several parents picked up students from the school after erroneous reports of a riot in progress, he said.

The walkout was announced late Tuesday night after school board negotiators offered teachers a 4 percent base salary increase at a meeting attended by more than 80 faculty members.

Yearly salary increments and an increase in fringe benefits offered by the board would have raised pay about 7 percent for all but about one-fourth of the faculty at the top of the salary schedule, said board negotiating team spokesman Bob Gould, a school administrator in Pocatello.

The two sides agreed later in the evening to declare an impasse and call in a state mediator, whose advice is not binding on either side.

Ainsworth said the call for impasse was requested by board negotiator Gordon Waford, also of Pocatello. The move is viewed as a delaying tactic by members of the Jerome Education Association.

Ordered to psychiatric program

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — Fifth District Judge Theron Ward opted to delay sentencing up to 3½ years on a former Jerome doctor convicted of making sexual advances to young male patients.

In effect, the order allows William C. Donehue to be treated and evaluated at his own expense in a Provo, Utah, sexual offender program. Ward left open the possibility Donehue might be freed if he makes satisfactory progress in the program.

Donehue, 31, pleaded guilty March 6 to four counts of sexual misconduct involving male patients, three of them minors. He also pleaded guilty to a similar charge involving a patient in Ohio, and was sentenced last month to three to 10 years in the Ohio State Penitentiary.

The Ohio judged stayed the sentence pending completion of the "incarceration or detention" or-

Ward ordered Donehue transported to the Utah State Mental Facility at Provo and said he would review the former doctor's case after a time not to exceed 3½ years. He included stipulations that Donehue:

• Pay the estimated $80-a-day cost of the program himself.

• Remain in "prisoner status" and subject to conditions established by the program.

• Waive extradition in advance and be returned immediately if he is not cooperating with, or benefiting from, the program as determined by the program administrator.

"This is probably your last chance," Ward warned Donehue. "A great deal of work by many people has been expended on your behalf. I hope you are going to benefit from all these efforts."

Donehue's attorney, Greg Fuller, said the former doctor most likely will emerge pennyless from the program but, if the treatment succeeds, may be able to practice medicine in fields of little or no patient contact.

Three civil malpractice suits brought by parents also are pending in Jerome County.

Legislature's budget ax may prove boon to Democrats in '82 election

TWIN FALLS — The Legislature's budget cuts will prove a major target for Democratic candidates in 1982, says Idaho's chief Democrat.

Speaking to the Twin Falls County Democratic Central Committee Wednesday, state Democratic Chairman Marie Hanzel said the Republican-dominated Legislature has alienated voters who relied on state programs.

As such, Democrats are organizing throughout the state, hoping to convince voters their best interest lies with a turnover in state offices.

"I believe that Idahoans really got the short end of the stick with the last Legislature," she said. "I believe we're not so poor in this state that we need to dismantle our education system, that we need to abandon our senior citizens."

State Democratic Party Executive Director Robert Jarboe, scheduled to appear with Hanzel, was unable to attend.

Hanzel also criticized budget cuts in water and air pollution control agencies, moves she said benefitted no one but big business interests.

"The Republican Party is the party of big business ... that's what owns our Idaho Legislature, big business," she said. "We must educate (the voters) that their future lies with us."

Hanzel added the Legislature's rejection of Gov. John Evans budget and enactment of more substantial cuts in state spending was politically motivated.

"That band of reactionaries in the Legislature approved these cuts simply to embarrass the governor," she said. "I maintain it's time we flip the little red flag up and let the people in the Legislature know their parking time is up."

Hanzel, elected state chairman following one of the party's worst election defeats, said the defeat of former Sen. Frank Church may give party faithful the resolve to triumph in 1982.

She added the major priority for campaign 1982 will be Evans' reelection. But Hanzel said she was optimistic about that race, partly because Republican candidates appear ready to overcrowd the field as they did four years ago.

Baby X

Premature infant found barely alive in trash bag

BALTIMORE (UPI) — "Baby Boy X," a premature infant found barely alive in a paper bag next to a trash can this week, was "crying and moving around" Wednesday in good condition at a Baltimore hospital, doctors said.

Hospital officials said a doctor nicknamed the infant Oliver after the Charles Dickens character Oliver Twist.

The newborn baby was admitted Tuesday in poor condition with rapid respiration, slow, irregular heartbeat and a 94 degree temperature — "too low to measure on a normal thermometer. He was cold all over his body," said Dr. Kee Park.

Baby Boy X would have died if he had been left outside in 45-degree temperatures for another hour, the doctor said. The infant apparently was not born in a hospital and was dressed only in a T-shirt.

To revive the infant, medical personnel warmed him in a special apparatus for four hours to elevate his temperature. He is receiving antibiotics to ward off infection.

"He's crying and moving around. His outlook is pretty good," Park said.

The infant was found Tuesday by a man in Anne Arundel County after he heard "faint crying sounds" near trash cans in an alley, police said. The man told police he had seen a woman place a paper bag near the garbage cans.

The 3-pound, 15-ounce baby, believed to be a month premature, was connected to an intravenous bottle and a heart monitor Wednesday.

Baby Boy X will be placed in a foster home when he is released within two to three weeks, social workers said. If the mother is found and charged with abandonment, she would face a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $100 fine.

Brady undergoes surgery to stop air entering brain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House press secretary James Brady underwent unexpected surgery Wednesday night to close off a passageway permitting air to reach the brain, a hospital spokesman said.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, spokesman for the George Washington University Medical Center, said Brady "had been doing fine but in the course of this afternoon was less responsive" and his doctors became concerned.

O'Leary said the operation did not involve probing into Brady's brain. He said it was not emergency surgery "and could have been conducted tonight or tomorrow."

O'Leary said Brady's prognosis for recovery should still be "as good as it has been if all goes well" in the surgery.

He said the surgery was prompted by a problem of air getting into the brain ventricles — passageways in the brain tissue — "and not getting out again. That built up of pressure ... has the potential to cause damage."

O'Leary said the problem came to light Wednesday afternoon when Brady was given a brain scan that showed a significant amount of air in the brain ventricle that is normally filled with fluid.

In order to relieve increased pressure on the skull, Dr. Arthur Kobrine, Brady's neurosurgeon, placed two needles in Brady's head for a few minutes. The needles helped relieve the pressure, the air came out and "he was fully responsive minutes after that."

He said Brady was then taken to surgery to close off the passageway.

O'Leary said the new surgery gave Kobrine an opportunity to "look at the brain and the brain is healing well."

Environmentalists name 'Filthy Five'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An environmental group named five companies to its "Filthy Five" list Wednesday, and 16 members of Congress who accepted contributions from them were named as members of its "Filthy $5,000 club."

Environmental Action said the five companies — Weyerhauser Corp., Dow Chemical Co., Occidental Petroleum, Republic Steel and Standard Oil Co. of Indiana — "have made a mockery of our nation's pollution control effort by seeking to substitute campaign contributions for clean-up expenditures."

Matthew MacWilliams of the group told an Earth Day news conference the companies were chosen from among the 100 largest in the country. He said the final five were picked for their environmental record and where their political action fund contributions went.

"Perhaps the most striking statistic which became apparent when the giving records of these companies were analyzed is that they give predominantly to incumbents with poor environmental voting records," MacWilliams said.

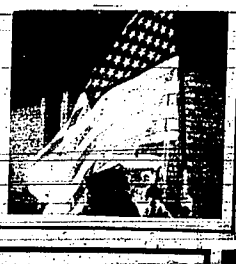

The members of Congress will be sent framed certificates stating that they accepted contributions from the companies, "rank polluters all."

MacWilliams said all five companies have a history of "significant environmental violations" such as oil spills, water pollution, air pollution and illegal dumping, and the five firms contributed more than $1 million through political action committees in 1980.

Symms' office shrugs off designation

BOISE (UPI) — The naming of Sen. Steve Symms as a member of the "filthy $5,000 club" of congressmen who accepted contributions from "polluter" corporations was dismissed Wednesday by an aide.

"It's just more of the same," Andrew Schirrmeister, Symms' press assistant at Washington, said in a telephone interview.

During his campaign against Democratic Sen. Frank Church last year, Symms underwent heavy fire for accepting contributions from political action committees affiliated with chemical and oil companies.

"They've gone after Steve in the past and they've gone after (Sen.) Jim McClure in the past," Schirrmeister said, "We've had all this before and I'm sure we'll have all this again."

He said an Environmental Action spokesman told him Wednesday that Symms got $17,000 from the five corporations' political action groups, but Schirrmeister said he didn't have the records available to verify the figures.

"The Symms spokesman said the freshman senator, however, stood behind his "balanced policies to strike accord between jobs and protection of the environment."

He denounced Environmental Action as "a very extreme group of environmentalists" having a "no growth" philosophy.

Meantime, Schirrmeister said Symms was "not locked in" to possibly repeating his vote that slowed President Reagan's economic package. Symms voted earlier this month with two fellow conservative Republicans on a Senate committee to put a kink in Reagan's package. They said the proposed budget deficit under the plan was too large.

The public "is beginning to see the real meaning" of the three GOP votes, Schirrmeister said, adding that Symms was trying to sell Reagan's proposals, not scuttle them.

HAILEY — The Blaine School District will hold its $850,000 override levy election on May 5.

Teachers

"They just may stall us through the end of the school year. That's what they wanted all along," Ainsworth said.

He said the board had not presented its first salary proposal until Tuesday's bargaining session, and then refused to budge on the amount even after teachers dropped their request from 15 percent to 12 percent of funds added to next year's budget for teacher salaries and fringe benefits.

He said most teachers believe the board has more money available than it claims, adding it is his conviction teachers and classrooms should come first if basic education is truly the community's goal. He noted the board intends to replace the full-time athletic director it cut two years ago in a budget squeeze.

The size of the district's year-end fund balance has been mentioned prominently in the dispute. Superintendent Christensen said an audit report last July placed the figure at $300,000. He said he "can't even guess" how much will remain at the end of the present school year.

Board member Jerry Callen said Tuesday the board agreed to appropriate $130,000 from the fund for teacher salaries.

An April 16 estimate of revenue indicates the district will receive about 7.35 percent more in state and local taxes. Christensen said he is not sure how firm the figure is, adding it includes a 28 percent increase in reimbursements for transportation.

"I am not unsympathetic to the teachers' plight," the superintendent said. "Schools have been under attack in this state for two years now, and I can see their frustration."

He said state and federal goals to curb inflation are necessary, but it is hard for teachers to be sympathetic when, for example, Idaho Power Co. is asking for a 21 percent increase and all other parts of the economy are increasing.

Break in Atlanta?

FBI investigates civil rights group claim it knows who killer is

ATLANTA (UPI) — A civil rights leader said Wednesday he has a witness who can identify a "madman" involved in killing at least six of the 25 young blacks abducted and slain in Atlanta.

The FBI called the development an important break in the case.

Roy Innis, national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality, said in addition to the witness he has a photograph of the suspect. But he warned if police don't arrest the man by 1 p.m. Saturday "we will collar ourselves."

Innis said more than one person is behind the mass murders. He said his witness knows one of the men involved in the killing "of at least six and I suspect a lot more" of the victims.

Innis — and presumably his witness — met for three hours in his hotel room late Wednesday with John Glover, agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office.

"I've just had a productive and fruitful meeting with Mr. Innis," Glover said. "I certainly consider it important. We'll have to check it out and see what we have."

Innis said after the meeting that "I am very impressed" with the FBI reception of his information, but he said the 72-hour ultimatum "still stands."

At one point, Innis said he had tried to reach police but failed due to bureaucratic confusion. At another point, Innis said he had not gone to police "because the key witness does not have confidence in the police."

Atlanta police and task force officials refused to comment on Innis' claims.

Innis called a news conference on the steps of city hall Wednesday afternoon and announced "We have identified the link that will break this case.

"We know the person who is the critical link and we have him under surveillance," Innis said. He said the man was a "psychopath".

He waved an envelope which he said contained a photograph of his suspect.

Innis said CORE had contacted Vice President George Bush's office about its information, but was told to notify Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson by letter.

He warned, "We will — give the mayor a 72-hour ultimatum to take matters into their hands or back away." If police fail to make an arrest, Innis said, CORE would "make the collar ourselves."

"If this case had occurred around white children (or) black middle class children — maybe a dozen — it would be solved by now," Innis said.

Asked if CORE might be overstepping its authority, Innis said, "You stop the killings and worry about the reprecussions later."

John Schaffner, managing editor of the Atlanta Constitution, said CORE officials called him Monday and asked him to talk with their witness "in order to get my assessment of the validity of the witness."

At 7 p.m. Monday, he said, Innis, two aides and the witness met with Schaffner and a reporter. "We interviewed the witness for about five hours," Schaffner said, and afterward he told Innis that "this information had to be turned over to the police immediately. Innis was skeptical about doing this."

Schaffner said he would turn the information over to police himself if Innis had not done so within 24 hours. Schaffner said that "at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, after determining that CORE had not made contact with police," he called Deputy Chief Morris Redding, commander of the task force, and gave him "the details of the meeting.

UAW denies request for wage reductions

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers again rejected the auto industry's urgent plea for immediate wage reductions but said Wednesday it is time to begin work on the 1982 contract renewal.

If the auto companies expect the UAW to "rap on the door" and present plans for a contract reopener, "I think they're going to wait for a long time," said UAW President Douglas A. Fraser.

But Fraser, at a news conference, agreed heartily with industry appeals for greater productivity and reductions in costly absenteeism as part of their fight for new vitality and increased competitiveness with the Japanese.

To the rising chorus of appeals from the industry for immediate reductions in labor costs, Fraser reiterated that the only UAW bodies empowered to reopen contracts — the Ford and General Motors councils — soundly rejected that option March 19.

"That has to be the cornerstone of our policy," he said.

"But obviously, when we next go to the bargaining table we will have to take into account the economic condition of the auto industry."

Events last week in Washington prompted a hectic day in Detroit automotive circles. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige asked the companies and the union to detail their recovery plans as a way to assure Japanese automakers Japan will not be asked to bear the brunt of reviving the U.S. auto industry.

The industry responded it already has taken dramatic recovery steps, including severe internal cost-cutting and an unprecedented $80 billion capital spending plan to increase the fuel efficiency of its entire car and truck fleets.

Ford Motor Co. Chairman Philip Caldwell also called a news conference to reiterate that the company has cut white collar employment and salaries, reduced dividends, closed plants and ordered the revamp of all its cars and trucks.

Feels compassion for assassin, parents

Reagan describes moment of shooting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, suffering constant pain from the assassination attempt that "still seems kind of unreal," said Wednesday he prays his alleged assailant "can find an answer to his problems."

In an interview with United Press International and Associated Press, his first since he was shot March 30 outside the Washington Hilton, Reagan also said "No, there's not going to be any change" in security arrangements in the future.

But he added with a big smile, "I have a hunch I'll be more alert in going (out) again."

The 70-year-old rosy-cheeked president, wearing a gray light patterned wool suit, walked a bit stiffly but said he is "feeling fine."

Reporters allowed to conduct the interview had agreed to limit the questions to Reagan's health and his recollections of the shooting.

Asked if he had any feelings about John W. Hinckley Jr., the accused gunman, Reagan said: "I hope, indeed I pray, he can find an answer to his problems. He seems to be a very disturbed young man. He comes from a fine family. They must be devastated by this. I hope he'll get better."

Calling his recovery "as astonishing to me as it is to the doctors," Reagan made no secret of the fact he still suffers considerable pain in his chest.

"As the doctors will tell you ... it's one of the longest enduring discomforts and it doesn't go away," he said. "There's pain and discomfort there constantly ... which you hope day by day gets less, and I think is day by day getting less."

"I don't think I'm going to hurdle any table for a little while," he said.

But he said, "actually I don't think I'd be doing anything different" in the Oval Office than he is doing now in the family quarters, "and I'm just going to do it my way."

"It's convenient this way because there still are calls by the doctors — they come and check," he said. He said he also can make telephone calls in his robe, take his naps and hold staff meetings at a leisurely pace.

Asked if he ever had a feeling that he was in mortal danger at the time of the shooting, Reagan said:

"No, as a matter of fact it still seems kind of unreal. I knew they had to be shots and my first instinct was to take a look behind and see what was going on. The Secret Service man behind me had a different idea, and the next thing I knew I found myself pushed into the car. But it still seems kind of unreal."

"I knew I had been hit but I thought it was from the Secret Service man landing on me in the car. I just say it was the most paralyzing pain. I've described it as if someone hit you with a hammer.

"But that sensation came after I was in the car ... and I thought the pain wouldn't go away. Suddenly I found I was coughing up blood. We both decided that maybe I had broken a rib, and had punctured a lung so we had to go to the hospital.

"I walked in and gave them my own diagnosis and the next think I knew I was on a cart. It was then I guess that they found a wound and found I had been shot."

Reagan said his main concern as he was being sped to the hospital was that he felt he was "getting less air and you know that panic you get when you're strangling."

But he said he remained alert, and with his typical humor, added, "I knew the manner in which I was unclothed that I probably wouldn't wear that suit again."

Cassia steam plant: So close to reality

The concept of a garbage-burning, steam-producing plant seems so right for the 1980s — but it is a dream that may go up in smoke.

Unless Cassia County officials come up with about $50,000, their two-year struggle to build and put such a plant on line will die, possibly as soon as Monday when officials make a final decision.

What went wrong? Financial estimates failed to hold up. Production costs will be higher than anticipated and initial revenue from the sale of steam won't meet projections. No one can be faulted here, but it is frustrating for county officials to have come this far only to see their hopes for the plant dashed.

To get the financing for the operation, county officials had to be able to show it could make ends meet. And until recently, there was no hint of a financial shortfall. So-positive was the outlook that equipment had already been delivered to the construction site.

Burning garbage to produce steam is a tremendous, cost-efficient idea. Not only would the operation produce energy, but it would relieve landfill operations at the same time. It would be an ideal solution to energy and garbage-disposing dilemmas facing many communities — particularly in Cassia County, which faces replacing a landfill inside of three years.

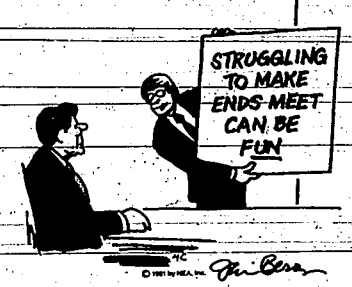

Has the county explored all its options to try and save the plant? Its leaders believe they have, but it will be an expensive setback if the plant is canceled. The county may be able to recoup costs already invested, but the real loss will come later on.

Garbage-burning, steam-producing plants are a proven success. Although Cassia officials say the concept could be revived in the future, the costs will run much higher and the county still faces the landfill problem.

Can anybody help Cassia out? Officials in neighboring counties should consider that question. There is so much potential for this project, it would be tragic to see it die now, so close to fruition.

Losing your luggage on shuttle

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

The "Columbia" Space Shuttle went off without a hitch.

That was because it was on television, and everyone involved took extra pains to see that nothing went wrong. But in several years when we take Space Shuttle flights for granted, astronauts can expect the same problems that people who fly commercial airlines encounter.

"Are you in charge of luggage for the spaceship 'America'?"

"Yes sir."

"Well I was on it, and my luggage didn't arrive. It had my electric razor and all my food-paste in it."

"These things happen. Could you show me on this card what bag it resembles the most?"

"This one here."

"I see. Well, let me call and check if Cape Canaveral knows anything about it . . . George, Harry here at Edwards Air Force Base. You haven't seen a brown three-suiter with green straps, that was supposed to be on the 'America' flight today? Yeh, it was routed from the moon, via Atlanta. The number is 43216-E, like in Eastern Airlines. Take a look around will you? Hmmm. You haven't? Thanks, I'll check with Atlanta."

"Did they locate it?"

"No sir. But I'm sending a telex to Atlanta to see if it might have been offloaded and put on our red-eye flight to Venus."

"You have to find it. I've got film in it of the Earth that has never been seen before."

"Now don't get excited. I'm doing the best I can."

"Why can't you people at NASA be more careful with people's luggage?"

"I only work in Lost and Found. I'm not responsible for the entire space program."

"I'm expected at the White House tomorrow for a dinner with the President of the United States. My tuxedo is in that bag."

"Just calm down. We'll find it. Atlanta should be back to me any moment."

"Why, when I take a flight to the moon, does my luggage have to go through Atlanta?"

"Everything has to go through Atlanta. It's an FAA regulation."

"I'm going to write to the head of NASA about this."

"You'll only get a form letter back."

"I'm not leaving until you find it."

"Here comes the reply from Atlanta. Hmmm. There seems to have been a slight mixup. Your bag was apparently put on our super-shuttle flight to Jupiter."

"When will I get it?"

"Let's see, it will take a year to get there, and a year to get back. You should have it by June of 1987."

"I can't wait that long. I packed all my moon rocks in the suitcase."

"Now that was a silly thing to do. Why didn't you put them in your carry-on bag?"

"BECAUSE I HAD TO PUT ALL MY OXYGEN GEAR IN MY CARRY-ON BAG."

"Please don't shout. You're making the other people who lost their luggage nervous. What hotel are you staying at? We'll send it by taxi as soon as it arrives."

"I don't know what hotel I'll be staying in."

"We'll be very happy to supply you with a toothbrush and shaving gear until the Jupiter Shuttle returns."

"I don't want a toothbrush. I want my luggage."

"Oh dear, I hate to see an astronaut cry, sir. Maybe Atlanta made a mistake and your bag was only sent to Mars. Then you'd get it back by next winter."

"What you're really trying to tell me is that you have no idea where my luggage is, and you just gave me this cock-and-bull story about it going to Venus to get rid of me."

"To be honest, it could have gone to Venus or Biloxi, Miss. When our people tag the luggage, they always get the two places mixed up."

It makes sense to save YFCA

Editor, Times-News:

Recently, the local board of the YFCA closed the facility due to a $250,000 debt — $140,000 outstanding on the indoor pool, $80,000 of accumulated debt, and $30,000 of estimated necessary repairs. The board has decided to allow approximately 90 days for the community to try to raise money to cover the debt before selling the building.

Though I recognize the magnitude of the debt and the problems the Y has encountered, I also realize the value of that facility to our community. That facility aids our music community as a place to hold recitals and meetings, provides senior citizens with a place for bridge tournaments and socials, has a chapel for small church groups to meet, has a varied program of activities for children of all ages no matter what economic background. And it is the only indoor pool facility where all age groups can lap-swim or take year-round swim classes. That pool is the only regulation indoor facility from Boise to Pocatello. Without the pool, the programs for training water-safety instructors and senior life saving will be curtailed. All persons who lifeguard at summer pools throughout Magic Valley need these courses. The WSI expires in two years and must be continually renewed. The YFCA provides a place for all surrounding community pool workers to acquire the WSI.

The Scouting program will be affected also. Scouts must pass junior and senior lifesaving to acquire their various ranks. The many people of all age groups lose their opportunity to lapswim year-round. Swimming is a sport that people with physical problems can participate in to stay physically fit. Robert Stuart's special education class used the Y pool; physical therapists of the area held classes there to rehabilitate accident and severe illness victims.

Research in this area from past members of the Parks and Recreation board and from workers at the Harmon Pool revealed that the future of Harmon is very tenuous. Due to a leak somewhere in the deep end of the area beneath the pool is washing away. In one time period the walls of the pool moved in six inches. With the implementation of the 1 percent and the resulting shortage of funds, the parks board will not have funds to replace Harmon for some time. Hence, Twin Falls could be totally void of a swim facility in the near future.

From purely the economic standpoint it seems poor judgment and apathy to let an $800,000 facility slip away for a mere $200,000 to $250,000. With rising property, building, and labor costs a replacement facility will not be built for $250,000. Closing the doors and selling the building doesn't solve the problem — this action only delayls the time when the people of the community will have to dig into their pockets and pay several times the $250,000 to provide a portion of what the YFCA now provides. In 1975, the pool portion was completed for approximately $220,000. A 25-yard four-lane, indoor pool cannot be built for that amount in 1981.

Saving the Y will take one last major fundraising effort. With help from many, it can be saved. Surely, Twin Falls and Magic Valley have enough financial solvency and pride to meet this very evident need. If you care and wish to help, please call me at 733-6332.

She searches soul in wake of Pulitzer Prize scandal

© The Boston Globe Newspaper Co.-Washington Post Writers Group

BOSTON — We were sitting around in the city room chuckling over the many marriages of Evangeline.

Every day, it seemed, someone unearthed another former husband of New York Gov. Hugh Carey's new bride.

We were taking bets on the grand total, shaking our heads about the naivete of a woman who thought she could get away with it. She'd verbally killed off one husband, "forgotten" to put another one down on the marriage license.

It was a comfortable gossip for a slow afternoon.

Then the news came in about Janet Cooke of the Washington Post. Suddenly it wasn't so funny anymore. Although we'd never met her, she was one of our own. A journalist had been caught lying, caught in the full limelight of the Pulitzer Prize with fake credentials and a fake story.

There had been no degree from Vassar. There had been no interview with an 8-year-old heroin addict. The Pulitzer was returned.

In my city room, and most others, reporters clustered around, and shook their heads. We talked about nothing else all that day and the next. We talked about the psychology of lying, about the apparent scope and nerve of this embezzlement of trust, about what it must feel like to get caught.

We felt sorry for her and sorry for us, we felt that it was a shame and shameful. We tried to figure out how an editor could have, should have, separated her fiction from fact. We talked about unnamed sources, and how this could have happened almost anywhere.

Frauds exist in other professions, and they exist in ours. But it's harder to report our own scams.

The medical reporter remembered the story he'd written about a "brilliant young researcher" who had made up the experiments. A doctor at the Massachusetts General Hospital, the cream of the cream, had been caught fabricating a small detail. Slowly his whole research project unraveled. Janet Cooke had been caught fabricating her academic degrees, and slowly her story had unraveled.

It was so unnecessary. The doctor was brilliant. Janet Cooke was a fine writer. Now, he is running lab tests in a suburban hospital in Michigan and she has resigned from the Washington Post.

The political reporter remembered a story he had written about a man appointed head of the Massachusetts department of elderly affairs. The first clue of fraud in his resume was that he had misspelled the name of his "alma, mater," the University of Heidelberg.

There were other tales exchanged about the people we have covered, the lives we've watchdogged: Rosie Ruiz, who "won" the Boston marathon. Tamara Rand, who "psyched" the Reagan assassination attempt.

Then we talked about our own: About the Oregon reporter caught making up quotes from the governor, about The National Enquirer, about Janet Cooke.

Journalists are dogged soul-searchers. We ask more questions about ourselves than about others. We'll analyze how this story got into print, and how it got into the Pulitzer's winning circle. We'll write biographies of one young reporter. We'll investigate how a reporter can protect sources and a newspaper can still protect its reputation. We'll issue new directives on checking and editing.

But it's hard to explain what this means to those of us in the business who have only one credential: our credibility. This is a society running short on trust. Most journalists deal with this fact every day. We're assigned the role of public trustee. We're the ones who uncover Rosie, Tamara, the scientist, the politician.

So, we are all affected by any single reporter who fuels the public wonder: Is this true? Do I believe them? We are all affected by any lie that finds its way to print, let alone to prize. It makes our jobs harder, it makes our lives harder. We feel it.

Journalism will survive this one. The Washington Post will also survive. We may even come out with tougher guidelines and, for better and worse, more internal skepticism.

But Janet Cooke has greased the chute of public disbelief. Frankly, it feels lousy.

Irish rioting spreads

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Hundreds of masked Catholic rioters battled police in five cities across Northern Ireland with acid bombs and molotov cocktails Wednesday.

It was the worst and most widespread rioting in Northern Ireland since IRA hunger striker Frank Stagg died in a British jail in 1978. IRA convict Bobby Sands was in the 52nd day of a hunger strike Wednesday and reportedly near death.

The rioting began in Belfast and Londonderry and spread during the night to Newry, Lurgan and Strabane.

The rioting was sparked by emotional funeral services for two teen-agers killed by a British army Land Rover Sunday.

The mother of one of the dead youths, Gary English, 18, threw herself on her son's grave and shrieked, "Don't go! Please God, take me!"

In Newry, 40 miles south of Belfast, rioters seized four buses and set ablaze two abandoned apartment blocks near the town center.

Hiding behind the hulks of overturned, burnt-out trucks and cars, the demonstrators hurled milk bottles holding sulfuric acid, rocks and gasoline bombs at police and British soldiers.

Pope John Paul II deplored the situation at his weekly audience in the Vatican saying the "new, grave clashes have rendered the situation more tense and more threatening."

A spokesman for Archbishop Gaetano Alibrandi, the papal nuncio to the Irish Republic, said Alibrandi was in "close touch" with the pope about the stalemate.

Alibrandi said he was willing to meet with Sands, who is demanding treatment as a political prisoner, if the IRA leader requested and British officials approved.

At Strabane, 16 miles south of Londonderry, Catholics sealed off the main street and battled police and troops with firebombs and rocks.

At funeral services for Brown, the Rev. James Doherty blasted British rule in Northern Ireland, saying, "Justice must not only be done but must be seen to be done especially when people whose occupation it is to uphold the law seem to want only to destroy the law."

Lebanese battles kill national identity

By THOMAS L. FRIEDMAN
United Press International

Analysis

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon is no longer a country, it's a battlefield of many wars — for land, for power, for religion, for money.

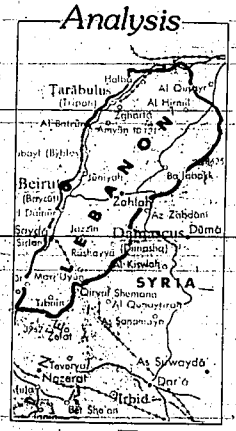

With six different armed groups espousing so many contradictory political visions on three separate fronts, Lebanon will never be whole again. Even agreed cease-fires are hardly observed and the 19 such agreements this month have failed to halt the bloodshed.

This murderous cycle of violence cannot be explained with a grand theory — only madness could explain it all. The best that can be done is to delineate who is fighting, where and why:

In Beirut: three main armies confront each other in the divided Lebanese capital. Their battle front is along the so-called "green line" — a 3-mile-long, 500-yard-wide swath of bombed-out deluxe hotels, shell-ridden banks and twisted steel that was once the heart of Beirut.

In West Beirut, which is predominantly Moslem, are the Soviet-armed Syrian peacekeeping troops whose 20,000 men entered Lebanon in 1976 to end the civil war between Moslems and Christians.

Syrian soldiers nestled behind sandbags on the roof of the Holiday Inn and other high-rise buildings have a clear shot with their multiple rocket launchers and field artillery across the green line into Christian East Beirut, where the Phalangist Christian militia and units of the regular Lebanese army are based.

The Phalangists, whose top strength is 15,000, took over East Beirut and a separatist enclave in the mountains north of the city during the civil war. Modeled after Mussolini's Fascist Black Shirts, the Phalangists are the largest Maronite militia in Lebanon and represent most of the Christians in the country.

They want a total withdrawal of the Syrian peacekeeping troops — whom they view as occupiers — as well as the 400,000 Palestinian refugees.

The Syrians, who also have the tacit support of Lebanon's Moslem population, refuse to leave because their presence enables them to dominate the Palestinian guerrilla movement and to protect their western flank against any Israeli attack.

Fighting between the Syrians and Phalangists has been going on since 1973 but their sporadic clashes erupted into full-scale warfare in Beirut and Zahle April 1 when the Syrians decided to launch a counter-offensive against the Phalangists' attempt to expand their enclave.

More than 300 people have been killed and 1,000 wounded in the fighting.

The Lebanese army tried to remain neutral, but was drawn into the clashes when some of its members were suspected by Syria — and rightly so — of supporting the Phalangists.

•Zahle: The fighting in Zahle, 33 miles east of Beirut, broke out when the Syrians decided to halt Phalangist attempts to control the town of 200,000 which is only 10 miles from the Syrian border and dominates the Beirut to Damascus highway.

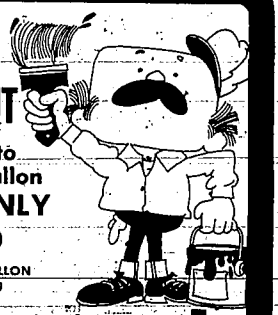

The Syrians feel they cannot allow the Israeli-backed Phalangists to control such a strategic city and in three weeks of fighting have managed to surround the town and cut off the Phalangists inside from their supply lines.

•Three other armies are fighting in south Lebanon. On one side is the Israeli army and the Christian militia of Maj. Saad Haddad, which is armed, trained, paid and clothed by Israel. Between the two of them they control a strip 5 miles wide and 60 miles long, running along the Israel-Lebanon frontier.

North of Haddad's area is a zone run by U.N. peacekeeping troops and still further north, in the rocky foothills of south Lebanon, are the Palestinians.

The Palestinians use the south as a launching pad for operations against Israel, while the Israelis and Haddad's militia use it as an anvil upon which they hammer the Palestinians.

Every veteran knows war doesn't end when the shooting stops. That's why attention must be given to the problems of Vietnam veterans. It takes years for returning veterans to learn the limits of new found abilities and tremendous courage to incorporate new disabilities into old dreams. Some never make it.

General Douglas MacArthur once said, "I know war as few others know it, and nothing to me is more revolting. I have long advocated its complete abolition as its very destructiveness on both friend and foe has rendered it useless as a method of settling international disputes."

The Vietnam veterans brought home more than their problems; they brought home a true understanding of MacArthur's words. They brought us strength to bind our splintered nation. They brought us peace.

Let's remember the Vietnam Veteran.

Billy Carter now working for Idaho firm

By United Press International

BILLY UPDATE

For those people who are wondering what ever happened to Billy Carter. The former First Brother is a salesman for Woodgrain Moulding Co., an Idaho-based firm. Billy was recently on business for Woodgrain in Haleyville, Ala., which is pretty far from Libya and those other exotic places his former business trips used to take him. Of his new job, Billy said, "I'm enjoying it. It's kind of nice to be doing it."

BENEFIT CONCERT

Pianist Byron Janis played a "Concert for Life" at Carnegie Hall Tuesday night for the National ALS Foundation — ALS is better known as Lou Gehrig's disease. The audience included New York Gov. and Mrs. Hugh Carey, Rob Leibman, Sylvia Sidney, Pat Kennedy Lawford and Ethel Merman. The pianist's wife, Maria Cooper Janis, daughter of Gary Cooper, and her mother, Rocky Converse also were there. At least two members of the audience were personally involved. Miss Sidney's son has the disease, and Mrs. Janis explained, "My husband had a good friend who died of it."

NO STAND-IN

Eileen Fulton, who for 21 years has been playing "Lisa" to jeers (when she was a villain) and cheers (now she's a good guy) on the CBS soap opera, "As the World Turns," also is a nightclub performer and recording star. Her latest disc is a contemporary country-western titled "Doggie Bag." She wants it known she also did the record's background vocals. "I do all my own barking," she said.

FLYING PIE

It wasn't pie in the sky for conservative William F. Buckley Tuesday night — it was pie in the face. Buckley was hit by an unidentified flying pie after telling University of Arizona students in Tucson that the need for student loans and tax subsidies to universities should be re-examined. Sgt. Sam T. Ragland said police suspected it might be the work of a pie-throwing service called "The Oddfather," which throws pies for a $5 fee. "We're pretty sure somebody went down there and took out a contract on Buckley," he said.

LIZA'S OKAY

Liza Minnelli's appearance at Atlanta's St. Joseph's Hosital Wednesday turns out to be nothing ominous. Miss Minnelli, 35, is in Atlanta on tour with Joel Gray, her co-star from "Cabaret." Susan Falck, spokeswoman for the hospital, said the actress was taking a "three-month routine followup series of tests because of her miscarriage."

Swiss women blast army chauvinism

BERN (UPI) — A Swiss women's rights group, already suing a company of soldiers for using pictures of nude women for target practice, has uncovered what it called "another unsavory military activity."

A spokeswoman for the Swiss Organization for Women's Rights said Wednesday this latest "affront to women's dignity" involves the transmission in code of the vital statistics of waitresses in local restaurants and bars frequented by a group of communications trainees.

She said the commander of the army communications company based near Zurich, exasperated at the lack of enthusiasm his troops displayed for Morse Code practice, devised the plan to stimulate their interest.

In the exercise, trainees talk back and forth in Morse Code, listing the local waitresses and rating their physical attributes one by one. The restaurant with the current highest rated waitress is chosen for the group's next "technical discussion."

In January, the group filed charges against army reserves in Fraubrunned, near Bern, for using photos of nude women for target practice.

Group warns secretaries of health hazards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group representing office workers marked National Secretaries' Day Wednesday by releasing a government-funded report that claims routine clerical work may be a health hazard.

"This National Secretaries' Day it's even more imperative that office workers reject the gesture of roses. In the face of the problems uncovered by this survey our very health depends on our organizing for adequate wages, clean and safe working environments and more control over decisions affecting us on the job," said Karen Nussbaum, director of Working Women.

"We know now that it's not only the highly paid executive who is likely to get a heart attack from the heavy responsibilities of his job. It's also his secretary," said the report written by the Working Women's Education Fund and paid for in part by the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Survey participants named stress and indoor air pollution as the top office hazards and almost 75 percent said working conditions were somewhat or very stressful. Often cited as chief causes of job stress were a lack of promotions and raises, low pay, monotonous work and no input into decision making.

The report noted stress has been linked to heart disease and said the hazards of office work have a particular impact on women, who are most likely to have a highly regimented job, experience the greatest stress and have the heaviest home responsibilities on top of their job chores.

The group called for congressional hearings on automation and job stress, legislation for safety in the manufacture of office machines, support for laws requiring the labeling of products with potentially toxic substances in offices, standards for office air pollutant levels and fire code reviews.

Other findings of the group's survey included:

•70 percent said the supply of fresh air in the office was inadequate or non-existent and almost 90 percent complained of temperature extremes.

•25 percent complained of irritating fumes in the workplace and 20 percent blamed photocopiers for the fumes.

•30 percent said their health had been hurt by office conditions, with 25 percent of those surveyed reporting lost work days because of office conditions. Almost 23 percent reported having either an ulcer or pre-ulcerous condition, high blood pressure or coronary heart disease.

•Top physical complaints were eyestrains or headaches (over 50 percent); back or neck pain (46 percent); severe fatigue or exhaustion (almost 40 percent); digestive problems (21 percent) and insomnia (18 percent). The survey said the symptoms are linked with poor lighting and poor equipment design.

Positive manner produces excellent results today for pursuing Pisceans

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day to make an advancement in career activities, but be sure not to force your will on others. You can easily extend your ideas beyond present boundaries now.

What's what

This is year prophetess forecast end of world

This 1981 is the significant year that Mother Shipman in 1485 predicted the world would come to an end. Stand by. Mother Shipman was the prophetess who so many centuries ago seemingly foresaw auto and telephone traffic when she wrote: "Carriages without horses shall go. . . And accidents fill the world with woe. . . Around the world thoughts shall fly. . . in the twinkling of an eye."

TOMATOES

You've read repeatedly no doubt that tomatoes were long thought to be poisonous. But do you know how they came to accepted as food? One Col. Robert Gibbon Johnson advertised he'd eat a whole basketful of them. People came from all over to witness his suicide. He lived. Tomato sales picked up promptly.

Q. Which U.S. President, if any, was the best tennis player?

A. Teddy, Roosevelt, probably. It was he who installed the first hard-clay court on the White House grounds.

It was in Buchheim's 1978 book "U-Boat War" that the clash was made that crew members on the hunt in German submarines during World War II never changed their underwear.

Q. Isn't there a popular writer called Tex Burns?

A. That was a name once used by western fiction miller Louis L'Amour, who's up there at the top of the list in dollar volume with cowboy stories.

BLUSH

You have to go all the way back to old Rome's Seneca for the observation: "Man is the only animal that blushes." Poor Seneca! Nero made him commit suicide.

Coalfield violence flares in gunbattle

By United Press International

Gunfire wounded four people in the Kentucky coalfields Wednesday in a bloody confrontation between—striking—United Mine Workers and truckers hauling non-union coal.

Kentucky state police said the shooting occurred south of Belfry, Ky., where several carloads of UMW pickets stopped a convoy of coal trucks hauling non-union coal into Mary Helen Coal Co.

Troopers said more than 100 shots were fired in the gunbattle between the pickets and the truckers.

"It looked like a war," said one witness.

Four men were taken to a local hospital with gunshot wounds and were listed in satisfactory condition.

Robert Compton, deputy sheriff of the Pike County police, said he heard voices on a citizens band radio saying the coal truck convoy had to be stopped. Compton said he heard one person say, "I don't care how you do it, just stop those trucks."

Farley charged state troopers did not try to stop the confrontation.

"I don't see what right anybody has to block a public highway and shoot at people," Farley said. "We can't get any support from the state police or the county. We'll probably have to shut down. People are just too scared to come to work."

Independent coal producers Wednesday worked on organizing efforts aimed at initiating their own talks with the United Mine Workers to settle the 27-day-old nationwide walkout by 160,000 miners.

The Unionized Coal Employers Association, headed by Jack Henry, of Whitesville, W.Va., set up a meeting in Charleston, W.Va., to discuss strategy. Independents do not belong to the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, but traditionally sign contracts negotiated with the UMW.

Meanwhile, UMW President Sam Church Jr. said contract talks would resume soon with the BCOA, the soft coal industry's bargaining arm.

There was no official word when talks would start again in Washington between the BCOA and the UMW, but Church told miners in St. Paul, Va., Tuesday, that he hoped "to get back in negotiations in the next few days."

Church admitted he "made a mistake" in recommending approval of a tentative contract agreement that included elimination of the royalty fee operators pay the UMW for each ton of non-union coal mined. Miners rejected the contract March 31, saying elimination of the fee would destroy the union.

Animals nothing to cackle about, neighbors gripe

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — South Park neighbors pecking at each other about chickens and other livestock will state their cases at Twin Falls City Hall next month.

On May 4, the Twin Falls City Council will hold a hearing on proposed revocation of a permit allowing farm animals at the Myrtle Moore residence, 595 Gardner St.

"The neighbors have been complaining, to put it mildly," about the livestock, said City Manager Tom Courtney. Moore said animals on and near her property include cattle, chickens and a 2-year-old filly. Until recently, she also had more than half a dozen sheep, she said.

Charles Jones, 556 Gardner St., said he and 13 other neighbors have signed a petition requesting the city withdraw its permit. The Moores have more animals than the permit allows and are creating a neighborhood nuisance, Jones said.

The city permit states one cow, two calves and 24 chickens can be confined on the Moores' property. Moore, who estimated she owns 12 cows, some calves and 20 chickens, said livestock in her yard is within provisions of the permit. Animals beyond the numbers allowed are grazing on nearby Twin Falls Livestock Commission Co. property with the firm's approval, she said.

Jones and other neighbors say that some of the couple's chickens running loose tore up vegetable gardens last summer, that cows have wandered down Gardner Street and one lumbered across a yard prepared for seeding. Jones also said livestock droppings smell in warm weather and the animals' presence has drawn rats and excessive flies.

"We've had to kill snakes around here, too, which is something we never had to do before," Jones said.

City Sanitarian Chet Hostetler said Wednesday he has not substantiated claims about the animals creating a sanitation hazard.

"What it comes down to is that they're just doing what they want, with no concern about anybody else," Jones said of the Moores. "Some of us finally just got mad enough to do something about it."

However, Moore said, her property rather than animals is the real subject of the neighbors' dissatisfaction. Her home's front yard consists of mud hardened into hills and valleys after recent rains. Numerous old-model vehicles are parked nearby.

"I don't like this any better than the neighbors do," Moore said. "I wouldn't want to look out

Cilek receives award

Cilek, owner of the Krengel's True Value Hardware stores in Twin Falls and Jerome, was named winner of the annual award two months ago. He received the award during the weekly Rotary Club luncheon at a Twin Falls restaurant.

Cilek will travel to Washington, D.C., May 12 to 14 with winners of the Small Businessman award from other states to attend a reception at the White House and meet with officials from the federal Small Business Administration.

Cilek received a plaque from the SBA presented by James Kalbus, head of the SBA advisory board. The board chooses the winner of the award each year.

Cilek also received a plaque from the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry and a dish with the state seal from the governor.

In accepting the award, Cilek said he was proud of his stores' employees who made it possible for him to receive the award and humble because there are people who deserve the award more than he.

Filer school repair fund low

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

FILER — Repairs to the Filer High School building are "on hold," Superintendent Sheldon Kovarsky said Wednesday.

Cost estimates for another complete study of the 1918 portion of the high school building and the heating system ranged from $6,000 to $25,000, Kovarsky said.

"Our district just doesn't have that kind of money," the superintendent added.

He said engineer Gerald Martens, of Edwards, Howard and Martens Inc. in Twin Falls, estimated it would take $6,000 to review the structure and determine its future value and cost estimates for repairs. Engineer John Priester, of Buhl, estimated $25,000 to do a thorough study over six months and to provide recommendations.

During the Filer School Board's March meeting, Chairman Al Ochsner informed a citizens group that numerous studies have already been made, showing the life of the old section of the high school is limited. These studies have concluded permanent repairs would be more costly than replacing the building. At that time, he said if the citizens of the district wanted still another complete study, the board would call for one.

However, Kovarsky said Wednesday there just isn't that kind of money in the budget and the board will likely give the matter some more consideration in the May 18 meeting. Meanwhile, he added, holes in the building foundation are getting larger and more numerous.

The Filer School District is faced with the problem of a crowded elementary school, a deteriorating foundation in the old portion of the high school and the fact that district patrons turned down a school building bond issue in February, the second bond issue defeated in less than two years.

A citizens committee headed by George Ward has urged the board to save the old part of the high school building, contending it can be repaired for less than a new building would cost.

Ochsner points out any costly repairs will not gain much-needed classroom space. The bond issue proposal included a new high school building, conversion of the newer part of the existing building to junior high use and moving junior high school classes out of the elementaly building to create elementary classroom space.

Controversial occupancy tax could face further challenges

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's year-old occupancy tax just barely survived repeal efforts in the 1981 Legislature.

But a constitutional challenge to the tax on newly occupied properties may be ahead.

Twin Falls County Assessor Bill Clark, who has threatened such a challenge since the 1980 Legislature voted for an occupancy tax, says he may pursue in court what has eluded him at the state capitol.

Idaho lawmakers voted this year to repeal the tax, largely at the request of most county assessors. The repealer was also supported by the Idaho Association of Counties.

However, Gov. John Evans vetoed the legislation and Idaho Tax Commission officials have been informing county officials the law will be enforced.

Should Clark's challenge go to court, it may take the form of a suit waged by the state tax commission. Clark said he is prepared to precipitate the suit by refusing to enforce the tax on grounds it is inequitable and that the Legislature can not mandate property taxes.

The decision to take such action is pending a review of the issue by Twin Falls County Prosecutor Harry DeHaan, who said this week he has not reached a conclusion.

How the State Tax Commission would respond to such an action is unknown, said Phil Long, real and personal property tax bureau chief.

"I think it's a matter of wait and see," he said. "We would have to wait and be guided by the attorney general, of course."

The law provides all new buildings are put on the real property tax rolls immediately after they are occupied. Prior to the law, buildings remained off the tax rolls during the remainder of the year in which they were occupied.

The measure was designed to finance costs of growth carried by local governments, school and highway districts. In his April 7 veto message, Evans said the measure provided equity for established property taxpayers.

"Because these newly constructed properties paid no taxes (previously), the expense of providing services was borne by the rest of the property owners who have complained at the ballot box of the difficulties of paying their own taxes, let alone taxes which should rightfully be paid by others," Evans said. "It is when property is first built that roads, schools and fire stations must be built as well as services extended to areas that were previously unserved."

But Clark argues the measure creates an inequitable tax situation on a number of grounds, and the little additional money added to county coffers does not compensate for the increased administrative costs to the assessor's office.

Among the administrative problems is the practice of placing property under construction appraised at the first of the year, and later occupied, on the tax rolls twice, he said.

As a result of such duplication, the county spent roughly $3,000 collecting the tax, he said. Of the $9,296 generated by the tax in Twin Falls County, roughly $1,783 went to the county. The rest went to cities, school districts and other taxing districts in the county, he said.

Under the occupancy tax, the amount of tax paid by occupied homes would be higher than that charged similar unoccupied structures, he said.

"To my mind, they are attaching an ad valorem tax on people and you can't add value (for property tax purposes) on people," he said. "I don't like that concept. At the same time, other types of property, such as mobile homes, are exempted because that is personal, not real, property."

County buys computer system

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Commissioners voted Wednesday to spend $97,806 over the next three years to purchase a computer.

Officials hope to be using the machine in June.

Commissioners voted to award the contract to International Business Machines Corp., the only company under consideration. Another bid submitted by Family Practice Group of Pocatello was rejected because it did not meet county specifications, commissioners said.

Under the contract, the county will pay 10 percent down and 10.5 percent interest on the balance. Commissioners say federal revenue sharing funds will be used for the purchase.

Last year, county officials entered into an agreement with Twin Falls officials that provides for sharing the city's computer. County assessor records and auto registration and licensing have been logged.

But county needs were on the verge of outstripping the city computer's capacity, officials say.

With the new computer, county treasurer and auditor reports will be logged, as well as county sheriff's records, officials say.

Moreover, the computer is compatible video display terminals, programs and print-out machines already purchased by the county for use with the city's computer, County Clerk Dick Pence said.

"We're not starting over at all," he said. "We've already got the software and everything going."

Pence said county officials plan hooking up the two computer systems. Bob Stephenson, the city's computer operator, will oversee the county operation, Pence said.

Commissioner Merl Leonard added county funds which were funneled into a joint computer maintenance fund with the city will be refunded. County officials had agreed to contribute $5,000 each year to the fund.

Blick: School trustees need continued technical training

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Housewives, farmers or business people serving on school boards today must be prepared to handle highly technical matters.

To do so, says Mary Anne Blick, a Castleford wife and mother and president of the Idaho School Boards Association, a trustee has to maintain his or her own continuing education.

"The days when a school board member left home or field for a meeting, made some routine decisions and went home with no thought of school problems until the next meeting are over, even in our small districts," Blick said.

"We must be informed on insurance, our liability as school board members, legal responsibilities, financing, changing legislation and public relations among other things," she says. "Our association is a vital factor in keeping school trustees up to date on such matters. We conduct training sessions for all new school board members and offer continuing education for those with more experience."

With decisions on important matters resting with school trustees, Blick said a wrong decision in this day of large lawsuit settlements could prove costly to trustees and the district.

MARY ANNE BLICK
...state board president

She said no one argues the No. 1 problem facing Idaho's school boards is financing. Blick is optimistic, however, that districts will be able to retain quality education despite fund cuts.

As Idaho's chief school boards representative, Blick has attended conferences and workshops in Washington, D.C., and in other states. She said Idaho's educational problems are minor compared to large urban areas that have teachers escorted to classrooms by security officers and where busing problems are ever-present.

"We still have good quality public education in Idaho and our association is working with other educational groups to protect and improve it," she says.

One of her goals as head of the trustees is to include drug education programs in all Idaho public school districts.

"We have a pilot program this year in two northern Idaho communities, Plummer and Sandpoint. I will leave next week for Plummer to review the test program there and obtain information on success of the project," she said.

Blick said she and many other association members would like to see the program available to all Idaho schools next year.

"In our pilot programs we are not only utilizing law enforcement officers and drug specialists but also the cured addicts. We have to face the fact that drugs are here and the only way to deal with the situation is through education," she said.

Public relations is another of Blick's key goals. She said there is a sad lack of public interest in school board activities. "Very few people in a community can tell you the names of their school trustees," she added.

Hill-Burton controversies nearly over?

RUPERT — After more than two years, controversies concerning Hill-Burton requirements at Minidoka Memorial Hospital may be nearing an end.

The Department of Health and Human Services informed the Rupert hospital in March that two administrative complaints concerning Hill-Burton patients, filed last summer, had been withdrawn.

Moreover, Minidoka's 20-year commitment to provide a designated amount of free care in return for low-interest building loans expired Jan. 1, 1981.

However, an Office of Civil Rights investigation of aspects of these complaints has not yet been completed. OCR investigators visited the hospital in January but Frank Martinez, OCR division director in Seattle, said a final report may not be ready for months.

Since 1979, both Minidoka Memorial Hospital and Cassia Memorial Hospital have been investigated for possible Hill-Burton violations, but no formal action by the federal government has been taken.

Letters sent March 19, 1981, to the Rupert hospital, and acknowledged at last week's hospital board meeting, indicate Hill-Burton issues had been resolved through agreement between the hospital and Legal Aid Services Inc. of Twin Falls, which had filed the charges.

Hugh Campbell, Seattle HHS spokesman, Campbell said although the federal goverment has yet to inform Cassia Memorial of its decision on two outstanding complaints there, both hospitals "are operating as they should be."

Three Hailey sites possible for shopping center project

By STEVE LATHROP
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — The Hailey Development Committee has identified three possible sites for the Atkinson Shopping Center project.

The committee, composed of members of the Hailey Planning and Zoning Commission and selected Hailey residents, is trying to find a downtown business location acceptable to Ketchum's businessman Don Atkinson. Hailey formed the commission with urging and cooperation from Blaine County, when Atkinson proposed to locate a 60,000-square-foot, multi-building commercial mall on land he owned north of Hailey.

The three sites under study are all within Hailey's boundaries, but not all are downtown. One site, at Myrtle and River streets, is only about 1,000 feet closer to the city center than the original proposal.

A second site, located on two blocks along River Street across from the Hailey post office, is much closer to the present commercial core. Parts of the site would have to be rezoned to accommodate a commercial use.

The third alternative, a block fronting on Main Street on one side and facing the Blaine County Courthouse on the other, may prove a distant prospect. Several committee members said they have heard Atkinson already tried to acquire that block, but could not agree with owners on a price.

Committee member Bob Ward said all three sites could meet the minimum conditions laid out by Atkinson representative Denis Perron. These are: A total of 30,000 square feet to accommodate a grocery store and drug store; 30,000 square feet for parking; and a location which is visible from Main Street.

The next step, Ward said, will be to set up meetings between Atkinson and the various site owners to see if a deal can be negotiated. Ward said the owners of all three sites have expressed interest.

Approximately 60 residents attended a public meeting to discuss the downtown sites Monday. Those who spoke were nearly unanimous in favoring a downtown location for the Atkinson project.

No override vote for Castleford

CASTLEFORD — Castleford School Board members say an override levy will not be needed next school year.

The board Tuesday night agreed to make up about $15,000 in costs over revenue by using carryover funds.

"The general feeling of board members is that by doing some cutting in various areas and being very cost conscious during the coming year, we can get by without an override election this year," said Superintendent Ed Schenk.

"We can't keep going this way for long," he added, "but we hope the Legislature will do better for us in the future. If not, we will probably have to ask for the special levy the following year."

Schenk said the district has never had an override levy for maintenance and operation that he knows of but it did have a plant facility override levy a number of years ago.

The board approved a schedule of football and volleyball practice during fair week next fall to avoid conflicts with students involved in 4-H, FFA and FHA projects.

Schenk said the board gave approval for practice at 7:30 p.m. during that one week.

School lunch supervisor Norma Chandler met with the board to explain a rate raise may be necessary for the coming year and to discuss the 60 percent cutback in federal reimbursement funds for lunch programs.

In other business, the board voted to rent the teacherage across the street from the school and discussed plans for upgrading the football field by leveling and replanting it. The Castleford Men's Club was given permission to use school facilities for a summer softball program. The board meets again May 12.

Burial will be in the Grouse Creek Cemetery. Friends may call at the Payne Chapel at Burley this afternoon and evening and at the church in Grouse Creek one hour prior to services.

HEYBURN — Services for Elma Moore, 72, of Heyburn, who died Sunday, will be at 11 a.m. today in Zion Lutheran Church at Burley. Burial will be in Paul Cemetery. Friends may call at McCulloch's at Burley prior to services. The family suggests memorials to the American Diabetes Association or the Heart Fund.

GOODING — Graveside services for Edith P. Eklund, 80, of Wendell, who died Monday, will be at 2 p.m. today in the Elmwood Cemetery, under direction of Demaray's Thompson Chapel. The family suggests contributions to a favorite charity.

HAILEY — Memorial services for Glen Albrethsen, 29, of Boise, formerly of Hailey, who is missing and presumed drowned, will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at Discovery State Park below Lucky Peak Dam. The family suggests memorials to Mountain Search and Rescue, Box 741, Boise 83701, or a charity of the donor's choice.

Rupert Council, BLM meet

RUPERT — A Bureau of Land Management representative discussed Shoshone land use planning with the Rupert City Council Tuesday night.

Erwin Crowley told council members that BLM representatives will be visiting all area governing bodies to get input on problems that need studying. He also said a final impact study and resource use study are in the works.

"I want to get all items court-defendable" Crowley said when several questions were asked concerning the land. Among the questions were the concept of a road between Rupert and Arco and a wildlife study area.

A public hearing in Rupert will be held April 29 at 7 p.m. at Washington school.

The council announced J-U-B Engineers will be awarded the water and housing rehabilitation projects for the HUD program.

Meat contest begins Friday

TWIN FALLS — The Independent Meat Co. will host the Northwest Meat Animal and Carcass Evaluation Contest Friday and Saturday.

About 75 college students from agriculture schools throughout the west will compete in the event, according to Independent Meat General Manager Pat Florence.

The first round of judging will begin at 6:30 a.m. Friday. The contest concludes Saturday afternoon. An awards banquet is scheduled for Saturday night at the College of Southern Idaho.

The contest is sponsored by the departments of animal science at the University of Idaho, Washington State University and the University of Wyoming, the Western Section of the American Society of Animal Science and Independent Meat.

Teams from New Mexico State University, Texas A and M, the University of California at Davis and Panhandle State College in Oklahoma will also compete.

Energy contest entries displayed

TWIN FALLS — Projects developed through Idaho Power Co.'s annual alternative energy contest for junior high school students will be on display Saturday.

Idaho Power officials say the contest projects, many of them working models, will be displayed and judged in the Blue Lakes Mall from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

More than 300 students from Magic Valley entered the contest. The number of displays will not be known until Saturday, Larry Taylor, spokesman for the power company, said.

Many projects will represent individual students' ideas for energy savings through wind, solar and geothermal sources.

Taylor said the contest is designed to encourage people to use something other than electricity for space heating, cooling, water heating and other energy needs.

Awards to winning displays will be presented at 2 p.m.

Solar publications available

BOISE — Copies of Idaho Office of Energy publications on solar greenhouse construction and solar domestic hot water heaters have been placed at public libraries in southern Idaho.

The workbooks, developed for the Energy Extension Service's workshops conducted last fall, have been popular as well for do-it-yourselfers, an energy office spokesperson said.

Both publications include materials lists, instructions on how to determine solar access and detailed drawings for the actual construction.

A limited number of both books is still available from the Idaho Office of Energy in Boise and the Energy Extension Office in Caldwell. Reduced funding for the office likely will prohibit re-publication, said Angie Neitzel, public information officer for the energy office.

By placing copies in libraries, the office hopes to keep the information available to the public, Neitzel said.

$330,000 suit stems from death

TWIN FALLS — A lawsuit seeking $285,000 for damages and $45,000 for attorney fees was filed in 5th District Court Tuesday.

Leonila Gonzales requested a jury trial and filed a complaint about an accident which caused the death of her husband, Ramiro Gonzales.

Gonzales' nine minor children are also plaintiffs in the case.

The complaint claims Robert and Jane Darrington, Cassia County farmers, and South Side Electric Lines, which distributes electric power in Cassia County rural areas, were negligent in the accident.

Ramiro Gonzales was employed by the Darringtons and was unloading sprinkler system pipes near Declo June 30, 1980, when the accident occurred.

The complaint states the Darringtons and their employees did not properly supervise the working conditions and they established unsafe working procedures.

Trucking 'Roadeo' set for Boise

BOISE — The Idaho State American Trucking Association 1981 Truck "Roadeo" will be held in Boise June 19 and 20.

The state event is one of the qualifying events leading to the National Truck Roadeo Championship scheduled for Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 12 to 16.

The Boise event will be in the Boise State University stadium parking lot.

my window and see this, but we can't do anything with it until we get a backhoe in here." That might be possible in May, she said.

Lately, she said plans to improve the home and surroundings have been limited somewhat by family health problems. Recent house confinement because of illness prevented her from visiting the post office to pick up certified city mail about the animals. The post office returned the uncollected mail to the city.

Moore, who grew up on a farm, said her family has animals "because we've always had them. I suppose we should be in the country, but you can't always afford to have things just the way you want them."

She said the bottom line of the dispute is a lack of human tolerance and regard for personal freedoms.

"I was born in a free country," Moore said. "It seems like it's getting less free all the time."

Eternal Life

Blick

Blick says early projections indicated Idaho school teachers will average about 5 percent more pay this year. Agreeing it should be more, she said education in general is suffering financially — salaries are just part of the picture.

She said in her small district at Castleford (311 students), insurance costs for the teaching staff will increase 46 percent this year. Every other item the district buys will be going up more than the average 5 percent income increase the district expects to receive.

Some other questions before her association, she said, include consolidation of federal block grants with administration done by states; consolidation of classes to cut costs by cutting staff; and consolidation of school districts.

On the latter point, Blick noted the issue is an emotional one in most communities. She argued any resulting cost savings probably would not be worth the effort.

CLEANUP TIME IN CITY OF TWIN FALLS

Residents within the city of Twin Falls are asked to have their discarded material ready for pickup starting APRIL 27th, 1981 thru MAY 1, 1981 (5 DAYS).

The City will have trucks in the area the day of regular scheduled garbage pickup for the extra material.

All material in the alley that is wanted by the owner should be removed to private property as it may be hauled off.

Boston, Kansas City even up playoff series

By United Press International

The Boston Celtics and Kansas City Kings evened up their NBA playoff series Wednesday night.

Boston blew away from Philadelphia in the first half and coasted into a 118-99 decision while Kansas City, riding the scoring of Reggie King, rolled past Houston 88-79.

Larry Bird, in a virtuoso display of all-around basketball, poured in 34 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and dished out five assists to power the Celtics past the 76ers.

The series now shifts to Philadelphia for Games 3 and 4 on Friday and Sunday.

The Celtics actually put the game away when they moved to a 19-point, first-half lead and the Sixers would get no closer than 14 points the rest of the way.

Twice in the fourth quarter Philadelphia cut the margin to 14 but the Celtics, behind the inspired play of rookie Kevin McHale, thwarted the comeback and built the lead up to as many as 26 points. McHale had 14 of his 20 points in the final period.

Bird was nothing less than brilliant in the first half, hitting on 10-of-12 from the floor and scoring 23 points as the Celtics raced to a 66-47 lead. Bird, who also had 11 first-half rebounds, had 7 points in a 21-6 Boston spurt over the final 5:18 of the second quarter. Parish had 6 points in the spree while M.L. Carr added 4.

The Celtics shot 55 percent in the first half and the Sixers hit on only 44 percent of their floor attempts. Toney was the only Philadelphia player to hit double figures in the first half with 12.

The Sixers also were hit with three technical fouls in the second quarter — one on Steve Mix, another on Coach Billy Cunningham and a third for a zone defense. The technicals came in a 1:53 span midway through the period.

Boston made just 18-of-30 free throws in Tuesday night's one-point defeat, but hit on 14-of-15 in the first half with Archibald making 9-of-9.

King scored 31 points and unheralded John Lambert came of the bench to add 16, enabling the Kansas City Kings to even their Western Conference Championship series with Houston at one game apiece.

The 31 points were just two shy of King's career high as the 6-foot-6 power forward scored at will against Billy Paultz, Bill Willoughby and Moses Malone, in that order.

As much a factor in the win was Kansas City's defense, which held Houston to only 31 second-half points. The Kings also limited Malone, who averaged 29 points during the regular season, to only 18 points. The 6-11 Malone also had three of his shots blocked in the third period when the Kings were putting the game away.

After Malone scored on a finger roll to put the Rockets ahead by one with 9:35 remaining in the third quarter, the Kings went on a 10-2 tear, getting four points apiece from Ernie Grunfeld and King to take the lead for good at 61-54.

Houston scrambled back to within 61-59 with 4:47 remaining in the quarter on consecutive baskets by Paultz and Willoughby and a free throw by Thomas Henderson. But the Rockets then went scoreless until Malone sank a pair of free throws after time had expired in the period.

Kansas City reeled off seven straight points during that Houston drought, including a three-point play by Lambert, to take a 68-61 lead through three quarters. The Rockets scored only 13 points during that 12-minute period on 22 percent shooting.

Kansas City then buried Houston with a 14-2 outburst over a six-minute span to open up an 86-69 lead with 3:37 left in the game. Lambert scored six of those points, including four on offensive tips, to help the Kings avenge an embarrassing 97-78 setback on their home court the night before in the opening game of the series.

CSI takes double-header from Ricks

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho baseball Coach Jim Walker finally got the pitching performances he's been looking for.

Logan Easley and Trent Ferrin — two Magic Valley products — baffled the Ricks Vikings with pinpoint pitching and the Golden Eagles upped their record to 22-5 with a double-header sweep Wednesday at Frontier Field.

In the first game, Easley allowed only two hits and CSI batters pounded Ricks for nine runs in the first two innings en route to a 10-0 whitewash. Four of CSI's early runs came from Mark Barbegelata's first inning grand slam.

Ferrin, 6-0, looked as if he might pick up a perfect game through the first four innings of the nightcap, but the Vikings finally put on runner on base in the fifth. Ferrin, however, held on to drub the Rexburg team 4-0.

Ferrin and Easley gave up six hits and struck out 12 of the 43 batters they faced. Easley, 4-2, never faced more than four hitters an inning and Ferrin faced no more than six.

For Easley, it was his first complete game of the season and the sophomore says it's a relief to get that behind him.

"I've been looking to finish one out this season," Easley said. "I know they called it after five innings, but I felt good and I think I could have gone more."

Ferrin, who had eight stitches put in his ear after being hit in his last outing, said Wednesday's results proves that he has reached his potential.

"After seeing what I did today, I think I can say I'm about 100 percent right now. Things are starting to click after a slow start," the Minico product said.

Although the sweep over Ricks puts the Eagles in a good position to gain a Region 18 playoff berth, Walker was disappointed.

Walker said the pitching performance was excellent, but he also said his teams' hitting was "terrible."

"We looked like hell at the plate," he said while his team ran sprints in the outfield following the game. "It's nothing major, but little things are starting to add up and that disturbs me. They all want to crank one.

"We have no intensity at the plate — no leaders. They're all waiting for someone else to do the job instead of doing it themselves," he said. "Of course Barb hit a beauty, but other than that we're taking the pitches down the gut. We're swinging at pitcher's pitches.

CSI's first inning set the pace for the remainder of the afternoon.

After batting around in the first, Caloiaro started off the second inning with another double and the sky began to fall on Ricks.

Kerbs gave up two walks and three more hits before being ejected from the game and the Vikings' shortstop let two Eagles score on fielding and throwing errors on the same play.

Johnny Hyde replaced Kerbs and the two pitchers settled down to a duel before Jon Maldonado knocked in the game-ending run in the fifth.

The third inning was the clincher for CSI in the nightcap.

After taking a 1-0 lead through two innings, Barbegelata reached on a double and stole third. He scored on a single by Tim McMannon. Bob Aguilar popped up to the centerfielder for the second out before Kelly Boren knocked in McMannon with a double. Brad Baker singled to bring Boren around for the Eagles' final run.

CSI athletes feted tonight

TWIN FALLS — Boyd Grant, who led College of Southern Idaho to the national basketball championship in 1976, will be the featured speaker at the school's annual athletic banquet tonight.

The event, sponsored by the Golden Eagle Boosters, will begin at 7 p.m. at the school cafeteria. Booster President Dennis Culp said tickets will be available at the door.

Grant, who served as CSI athletic director and coach for three years, returns to the Eagle campus after building a successful program at Fresno State. Grant took the Bulldogs to the NCAA tournament after winning the Pacific Coast Athletic Association championship. Fresno State was nipped in the first round.

An Idaho native, Grant came to CSI in 1974 and coached the Eagles to a second-place finish in nationals in his first season. That team lost three games, including the national finals.

The following year, CSI began building the strongest won-lost record probably in the history of junior college basketball. The 1975-76 team won 17 straight, lost an overtime decision at Snow College and then stormed to the national championship.

In his final year, Grant coached his Eagles to an undefeated season and saw a national win-streak record broken at 56 games in the quarter-finals of the national tournament.

He resigned soon after to accept his current position at Fresno State.

Coaches of the six intercollegiate sports at CSI will present their teams and pass out some individual awards. Coach David Campbell will handle the men's basketball presentation; Lloyd Hardesty, women's basketball; Karl Kleinkopf, cross country and track; Jim Walker, baseball, and Shawn Davis, rodeo.

Campbell said four candidates being recruited for next year's basketball team will be in attendance. These include Dave Piper of Skyline, Curt Day of Pocatello, Brad Blaine of Meridian and Charles Williams of Oklahoma City.

Expos nip Phillies 4-3 in 11th to sweep series

By United Press International

Willie Montanez singled on relief pitcher Tug McGraw's first offering with two out in the 11th inning Wednesday, driving in Gary Carter from third base and giving the Montreal Expos a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The victory gave the Expos a sweep of the three-game series. McGraw, the 1980 World Series pitching hero who has hit rough times early this year, suffered his second loss against one victory while Elias Sosa, 1-0, was the winner.

National League

San Diego 4, San Francisco 0

Gene Richards singled in a fifth-inning run and two runs scored on an error in the eighth to back Juan Eichelberger and Gary Lucas' combined five-hitter and lift the Padres. Barry Evans lofted a sacrifice fly to right to score San Diego's third run of the eighth inning.

Pittsburgh 2, Mets 2

At Pittsburgh, the game between the Pirates and Mets, tied at 2-2 through 8½ innings, was postponed because of rain and will be replayed in its entirety at a future date. According to Pittsburgh officials, all statistics for the game will be counted. The game was delayed as the Pirates were starting to bat in their half of the ninth inning and after waiting 90 minutes, umpires called the game.

St. Louis 3, Chicago 0

Tom Herr drove in two runs — giving him eight RBI in his last three games — and Lary Sorensen limited Chicago to four hits to extend St. Louis' winning streak to six. The Cardinals swept the three-game series with Chicago in stretching the Cubs' losing streak to nine games.

Atlanta 7, Cincinnati 3

Gaylord Perry won his 290th major-league game and Bob Horner batted in four runs, leading Atlanta over Cincinnati. Perry, 1-1, struck out six and walked two as the Braves swept the two-game series and stretched the Reds' losing streak to four games. Perry also had two singles and one RBI and retired the last 13 batters in a row.

Los Angeles 1, Houston 0

Caldwell keys state hopes for Twin Falls, Minico

TWIN FALLS — If Caldwell wonders where its rooters are these baseball days, it can rest assured that at least two of them live in Magic Valley.

The two are Rick Baumann, head baseball coach at Minico, and Ron Watson, Twin Falls' mentor.

Both of them know one of them won't be going to the state tournament if things don't fall into place. And Caldwell definitely is the fly in the ointment.

At this particular time, there is no doubt that Twin Falls and Minico are definitely two of the top four teams in the state tournament.

But for both of them to get to state, Caldwell just about has to complete the highly successful season it is enjoying. At last report, Coach Charles Alvaro's Cougars were running undefeated in the third district, Nampa apparently has the second best record at 16-6 (through the Mini-Cassia Easter Invitational).

The state tournament is an eight-team bracket. Seven slide into those brackets on the basis of district playoff results. The eighth is called a "wildcard" entry and supposedly is the best team that hasn't qualified by normal means.

Magic Valley's two titans have their eye on that wild card since this area qualifies only the district champion for state.

Therefore, it is necessary for Caldwell to maintain its winning ways. Should the Cougars be knocked off in the third district playoffs, there is every possibility that it could have the best record among the non-qualifiers. And the fact the tournament is slated for the Boise area this year would further enhance Caldwell's chances from a gate standpoint. High school baseball still doesn't make much money in Idaho and it costs about $1,500 to put the tournament on.

Baumann says he isn't very optimistic about things coming through to the Magic Valley teams' advantage.

"I've seen Caldwell do things like run up a 19-0 record and finish 19-8. I doubt they'll win that district if for no other reason that they've been the top dogs all year and everyone will be shooting for them," he said.

"Yeah, it would be great if it worked out. I think Twin Falls and us have pretty good ball teams and I think we would have a pretty good claim for the eighth spot."

Watson said "I don't think there's any doubt that Minico and Twin Falls both have proven that they are qualified to play in any tournament in this state. I'd love to see us play Minico for the championship."

"The thing about it is that Twin Falls and Minico and probably Burley before long will be looking at the same thing. All three of us have very young varsities and all three seem to be pretty strong on the jayvee level."

Minico has only three seniors on its varsity. Twin Falls has but five. Burley has four seniors.

But the thing favoring Minico and Twin Falls is they apparently will remain very deep in pitching. Both lose two pitchers to graduation this spring but in the case of Minico the bulk of the varsity staff currently is made up of freshmen and sophomores.

Baumann proved the depth of his staff in the Mini-Cassia Easter Invitational when he used seven pitchers and purposely kept one on the sidelines to face Twin Falls in Tuesday's game.

The one thing Baumann liked about the tournament — other than winning it, of course — was the fact it gave him a chance to use his staff.

Watson complains of the same problem — not getting enough work for all his pitchers. He has a pair of juniors, Todd Wigington and Brook Brodeen, who carried a large part of the pitching chores in the early going. But as the schedule spread out to two games per week, there has been less opportunity to get all the chuckers some work.

With the conference race as tight as its been, he's been sticking close to the "hot" pitchers, the ones apparently throwing at their best right now.

He also sees help from sophomores Victor Valdez and Mike Black in another year but disliked the news that another sophomore, Tom Chase, will be moving away at year's end.

To a large degree, the three-team district tournament works to the disadvantage of Minico and Twin Falls this year. The one — or both — getting to the state tournament will have a better advantage because playing three or four games in three days — with pitching limit rules — means the deeper pitching staff's chances of winning become greater each time out.

The district has days off between games, meaning a two-man staff can probably handle that with no problem. Yet in reality, a two-man staff has little real chance in a longer tournament.

"The thing that hurts most is that Minico and us cut each other up," Watson said. "We've won two games from them this year. If we go on and win the district they'll have to have at least seven losses. If they knock us off in district, we'll have at least four. That would make it tough for one of us to get the wild card, especially if Caldwell would get out of the regular season undefeated or with one loss and then lose twice in their district."

Rasmussen-led Bruins win Gate City title

POCATELLO — Twin Falls' golfers won the Gate City Invitational championship Wednesday and Jim Rasmussen overcame a bad breakfast to claim medalist honors.

The Bruins won it by 12 strokes — but with the highest score ever posted by an invitational winner. Twin Falls had a 332 total.

"I'm completely baffled by the high scores and so was everyone else," said Bruin Coach Al Rohweder. "It was tee-shirt weather, the greens were in good shape and so were the fairways. But for some reason, no one could score that well. Only four guys broke 80 and there were 15 teams there. I guess some of the greens didn't hold real well but there was nothing wrong with the condition of the course."

Meanwhile, Rasmussen tapped in a two-footer on the final hole to win the medalist pin over Shane Walsh of Burley 76-77. Walsh was the leader in the clubhouse practically the entire day. Rasmussen played in the second-to-last group.

The day didn't start that happily for Rasmussen.

"When we got there Jim said he wasn't feeling well," Rohweder said. "He said he'd try to play. The next time I saw him was on No. 8. I asked him how he felt and he said 'after I threw up I felt pretty good.' So then I asked him how he was playing and he said 'even par up to now.'"

The victory was Twin Falls' eighth in nine attempts, losing only in the Ontario Invitational. The Bruins shoot for the Gem State Conference title at Highland Golf Course in Pocatello Wednesday.

Jerome collects conference championship

MOUNTAIN HOME — Vance Turbeville fired a two-over-par 74 to lead the Jerome Tigers to the SCIC golf championship here Wednesday.

Turbeville, however, didn't do all the work himself as Jeff Barry (79), Todd Box (84) and Cory Darling (86) put together 18 holes of consistent golf to lead the pack with a 323 team score.

Host-team Mountain Home was second with 366 and Buhl was third with a 367. Sherry Francis, the only girl playing in the field, led all Buhl scorers with a 89. Todd Hix was low for Mountain Home with a 81.

Buhl 367 — Sherry Francis 89, David Lupdes 91, Doug McClain 93, Lou Weaver 94.

Slowpitch season underway

TWIN FALLS — The weather finally cooperated and the Twin Falls softball season got underway with 12 games Wednesday night.

In the first of six mens games, Ron Blake hit a game-winning home run to lead Club 93 to a 9-7 win over Twin Falls Bank and Trust. Kent Snow had three singles in a losing effort. Blake's game-run came in the top of the eighth inning. Blake also had two singles.

Northwest Plywood defeated Cook Pest Control 9-2 behind the three-single effort of Boyd Fields. Joe Faradez had two singles for Cook.

Diamond International jumped out in front in the sixth inning and stayed there as it went on to defeat Pederson's 9-6. Greg Moore had only two singles, but he also hit two long fly balls to score runs. Jeff Nehman picked up two doubles despite the loss.

In the thriller of the evening, Jay Bennis hit two doubles and a triple to allow K-Mart to nip Idaho Power 12-11. Lloyd Garvey also had a good night at the plate, with two singles, a double and a sacrifice fly.

Gary Bowyer and Rick Erickson led a balanced hitting attack and The Sponsors upended Southern Idaho Leasing 10-4. Erickson, Bowyer and Dale Thorn connected on a brilliant double play to end the game. Rod Barth proved to be the most consistent batter with three singles for Southern Idaho Leasing.

House of Beans' Rick Smith hit five singles and to lift them to a 14-10 come-from-behind victory over Blimpies.

House of Beans rallied with nine runs in the sixth inning. Terry Boyd highlighted Blimpies' attack with an inside the park grand slam.

In the women's action, Maryland Reglan of the Mary Carter Center went three-for-three to lead her team to a 20-3 shelling of Rocky Mountain Harvester.

In another lopsided contest of the same score, Taco John's knocked off Haden. Sandy Ford had the big bat with two singles and one home run. Karen Brockway went two-for-two in a losing effort. Despite a three-single attack by Club 93's Jackie Anderson, Donnelly-Bob Reese defeated them 13-6.

In the final two games of the night, George K's squeaked past Pepsi 6-5 and Obenchain Insurance defeated Payless Drug 14-5.

Rangers maul Red Sox 16-8

By United Press International

Dennis Eckersley's ERA took a turn for the worse Wednesday.

Pat Putnam drove in four runs, including three to highlight a seven-run first inning off Eckersley, as the Texas Rangers jumped to an 11-0 lead in the first two innings and went on to post a 16-8 thrashing of the Boston Red Sox.

In all, the Rangers pounded four Boston pitchers for 18 hits, with every player except Mickey Rivers collecting at least two hits. Billy Sample, hitting .206 entering the game, drove in three runs, as did Buddy Bell with a three-run homer.

Bump Wills led off the game with a grounder past first base which turned into a double when the Red Sox' ballboy inadvertently fielded it. Al Oliver then singled home Wills and Eckersley, 1-1, loaded the bases on a single to Bell and a walk to Johnny Grubb.

Putnam then cleared the bases with a double to center to make it 4-0.

Oakland 2, Minnesota 1

At Oakland, Calif., Tony Armas' RBI double highlighted a two-run first inning that the A's made stand up. The triumph was Oakland's 14th against only one loss, with seven of the victories coming against Minnesota. The Twins suffered their ninth loss against only two victories. Brian Kingman, 2-0, scattered seven hits, walked one and struck out five before departing in the ninth.

Milwaukee 8, Toronto 1

Paul Molitor belted his first major-league grand slam to cap a five-run fifth inning and singled in a run in the seventh to power the Milwaukee Brewers to an 8-1 rout of the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Brewers were trailing 1-0 in the fifth when Ted Simmons drew a leadoff walk from Toronto starter Luis Leal, 1-2, and one out later Gorman Thomas walked. Third baseman Danny Ainge then flubbed Don Money's soft grounder, loading the bases for Jim Gantner, who walked, forcing in a run and chasing Leal.

Cleveland 4, Kansas City 0

Len Barker fired a seven-hitter and struck out nine batters to lead the streaking Cleveland Indians to a 4-0 victory over Kansas City and a three-game sweep of the Royals.

Barker, 1-1, never got into serious trouble in coasting to his fourth straight triumph over the Royals dating back to June of last year. The victory was the fifth straight for Cleveland.

New York 7, Detroit 2

Steve Balboni, who had earlier tripled in his first major league at-bat, drew a bases-loaded walk to trigger a five-run seventh inning, leading the New York Yankees to a 7-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers and a sweep of their three-game series.

Reggie Jackson hit his second home run of the year and 412th of his career.

Minnesota moves to semifinal

By United Press International

The Minnesota North Stars continued their masterful Stanley Cup advancement Wednesday night, and the Edmonton Oilers may yet pull off the biggest upset of the playoffs.

At Buffalo, N.Y., Kent-Erik Andersson scored one goal and set up another in a three-minute span of the second period as the North Stars moved into the semifinals with a 4-3 victory over the Buffalo Sabres. Minnesota, which swept past Boston in the first round, won the quarterfinal series 4-1. The Stars' only loss thus far in the post-season was in sudden-death overtime.

Edmonton 4, New York 3

At Uniondale, N.Y.—Edmonton's Brett Callighen scored the go-ahead goal with 76 seconds left in the second period, taking a perfect feed from rookie Jari Kurri. Wayne Gretzky set up two first-period Oilers goals. The Islanders came to within 4-3 with 1:35 left on a power-play goal by Mike Bossy, his second score of the game, but could not get the equalizer.

Islanders defenseman Dave Langevin was struck on the jaw early in the second period by a shot off the stick of Lee Fogolin. Langevin skated off the ice, but was taken to a nearby hospital for observation. Game 6 is scheduled for Edmonton Friday night.

Philadelphia 9, Calgary 4

At Philadelphia, Brian Propp scored three consecutive goals in an 8:09 span of a five-goal first period to help the Flyers to an easy victory. Rick MacLeish and Bill Barber, who had two goals on the night to give him 10 for this year's playoffs and 50 for his playoff career, also scored in the opening-period club record-tying spurt.

The second period was delayed about 20 minutes when three fights broke out at the 13:55 mark, resulting in 111 minutes and 17 penalties called by referee Ron Wicks.

St. Louis 4, Rangers 3

In St. Louis, rookie Jorgen Pettersson's second goal of the game snapped a 3-3 tie early in the third period and gave St. Louis a victory that kept the Blues alive in their quarterfinal playoff series. The win cut New York's lead in the best-of-seven series to 3-2 and forced a sixth game Friday night in New York.

Gooding tips Jerome 9-3 in net dual

Jerome, Bruins shoot for loop track crowns

TWIN FALLS — It's Jerome in a roar and Twin Falls in a hope as conference track championships begin being decided this week.

Jerome is the odds-on favorite to sweep both sides of the South Central Idaho Conference finals at Wood River today while Twin Falls' boys have a chance of winning the first-ever Gem State Conference finals in Highland Saturday. The Bruins girls have a better than even chance.

Meanwhile, the other teams in Magic Valley will be going through their final brushups before next week's first meaningful meets.

Valley will be entertaining Shoshone, Gooding, Murtaugh, Castleford and Kimberly in a meet starting at 3 p.m. Glenns Ferry is pencilled in for home action against Wendell and Hagerman and probably others.

Carey will again host its all-comers meet, although most of the field will be the Northside Conference members.

The big meets next week will be highlighted by the first edition of the Twin Falls Classic, which literally breaks down to the old Southern Idaho Conference championships. Burley will entertain the Cross State Conference which should be a donnybrook between Jerome's depth and Madison's quality. The Northside will run at Carey and the Canyon Conference will be at Wendell.

There doesn't appear to be a lot the SCIC can do about Jerome. Coaches Tim Dunne (boys) and Skip Andrew (girls) have too much talent and too much depth for Buhl, Wood River and Mountain Home.

Some of the good duels should develop in the high hurdles and perhaps the intermediates. Jerome should dominate the distances in both divisions, at least to the point of getting two and three places from each. Robin Mein and Jim McKean give the Tigers a probable one-two finish in the longer events.

Of interest in the girls division should be the confrontation in the sprints between Vicki Winder of Jerome and Wood River frosh Lisa Bernhagen.

Twin Falls' girls are heavily favored in the Gem State Conference and those chances aren't hurt by the return of distance ace Julie Yergensen. She missed most of the past two weeks with a foot injury but was able to run in the two-mile relay at Boise without a lot of pain.

She reported the pain was gone in Tuesday's practice.

That returns the Bruin juggernaut to its usual lineup — and most of the time that means a sweep of the open events.

However, sophomore sprinter Sally Butts, undefeated against in-state competition this year, has been ailing and her immediate status wasn't known. Her loss also would affect high jump points.

"We still appear to be one leg away from competing for first in all the relays," Coach Jerry Kleinkopf said.

In the boys division, the Bruins will scrapping for every point in what should be a tight team battle.

Halfmiler Eric McManaman has to rank as the favorite in his specialty and junior Steve Galley will be fighting a Pocatello runner in the quarter. Senior Greg Scherer offers a first-place possibility in the long jump and perhaps the triple jump "If we can get him to lengthen that three-foot step," Coach Duane Stands said with a smile.

Derby buildup

Muddy track possible for Bluegrass stakes

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Arthur Hancock's Tap Shoes, who runs with what has been described as a "swimming or paddling" gait, may get a chance to show it off on a possible wet track Thursday in the $150,000-added Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland Race Course.

His odd gait has not affected the Flamingo Stakes winner's record. He has five victories, a second and two thirds in nine starts.

Twelve 3-year-old thoroughbreds, all eligible for the Derby, are entered in the 1 ⅛-mile Blue Grass.

Proud Appeal, who has won seven of eight career starts, and Tap Shoes are the top picks for the Blue Grass, one of the last major preps for the 107th Kentucky Derby May 2 at Louisville's Churchill Downs.

The word from the National Weather Service was showers and thunderstorms for central Kentucky Wednesday night and expected to continue Thursday. Rain had already moved into the Louisville area by late Wednesday.

Proud Appeal, coupled with Golden Derby in the Blue Grass, was the morning line favorite with odds of 4-5, followed by Tap Shoes at 2-1 and Cinnamon's Choice at 10-1.

Sportin' Life and Double Sonic were listed at 15-1; Swinging Light, winner of last week's Calumet Stakes, and Beau Rit, were 20-1, and Shahnameh, Bysantine and Habano, 30-1.

Jockey Jeff Fell will ride Proud Appeal, Reuben Hernandez will be aboard Tap Shoes and Jorge Espinoza will be on Golden Derby.

Tap Shoes, who defeated Well Decorated in the Flamingo, is trainer Horatio Luro's hope for a second Blue Grass and third Kentucky Derby win.

Instead of sending Proud Appeal against Cure the Blues, whom he defeated by a nose in the Bay Shore Stakes, trainer Stanley Hough chose instead to enter him in the Blue Grass for his first meeting with Tap Shoes.

Almost half a century separates the ages of Hough and veteran Luro, and the 33-year-old Hough is well aware of the difference.

"His past record speaks for itself," he says of Luro. "But no matter how good a trainer you are, you've got to have the horses."

Both trainers believe they have them, and the Blue Grass will go a long way toward showing which is the better thoroughbred.

Shoemaker put aboard filly entry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Shoemaker, a three-time Kentucky Derby winning jockey, will replace Jacinto Vasquez aboard Cure the Blues in the May 2 thoroughbred racing classic at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., it was reported Wednesday.

Vasquez, who rode the 3-year-old colt to a dismal third-place finish in last Saturday's Wood Memorial at Aqueduct, was dismissed Tuesday as Cure the Blues' rider by owners Bertram and Diana Firestone and trainer Leroy Jolley.

Rudy Turcotte and Donald MacBeth had been mentioned as Vasquez's replacement, but sources at Aqueduct, where the colt galloped two miles early Wednesday, say that Shoemaker is the choice aboard Cure the Blues.

Shoemaker has won the Derby three times — aboard Swaps in 1955, Tomy Lee in 1959 and Lucky Debonair in 1965. The "Shoe" missed a fourth Run for the Roses victory in 1957 when he misjudged the finish line while riding Gallant Man. Shoemaker, thinking he had won, stood up in the saddle while easing up on Gallant Man and Iron Liege raced past for the triumph.

Trackside gossip is that Shoemaker is most compatable with Cure the Blues and that the Firestones and Jolley felt he could rate the 3-year-old colt better than Vasquez in the stretch run.

In the Wood, Vasquez brought out Cure the Blues at a snappy pace, but tired in the late going of the 1-⅛ mile race and finished third to Pleasant Colony.

Idaho ends drills with alumni tilt

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The University of Idaho football team will conclude its 1981 spring practice this Saturday with the fourth annual Silver and Old alumni game in the Kibbie Dome.

There is no admission charge for the event which is expected to draw more than 50 football alumni back to the campus to face coach Jerry Davitch's squad of lettermen.

Bruin-Capital baseball date delayed

TWIN FALLS — The baseball double-header scheduled for this afternoon between Twin Falls and Capital has been postponed.

Bruin Coach Ron Watson said the games possibly would be rescheduled for Friday or Monday.

"I guess they've had some rainouts and are behind in their conference games up there," Watson said. "Last year they canceled out on us but this year we want to play if we possibly can because I don't want eight days between games like we had last week."

Capital would be a non-conference test for the Bruins who could clinch at least a tie for the Gem State Conference title by beating the Indians at Pocatello next Wednesday.

Women's fly-fishing clinic scheduled

BOISE — A women-only fly fishing clinic will be held May 1-2 at the Sports Fishing Fair at the Western Idaho Fairgrounds.

The clinic, conducted by Maggie Merriman, will cover fly fishing skills including reading the water, knots and leaders, entomology and individual casting instruction.

The times for the clinic are May 1 from noon until 5:30 p.m. and May 2 from 10 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

Women should bring a rod and reel, line & leader, notepad and pencil and a sack lunch on Saturday. The only fee is a $1.50 admission to the fishing fair.

Pre-registration is required by Monday (April 27) and should be mailed to Sports Fishing Fair, 3951 Hawthorne Way, Boise, ID 83703. Persons should include their name, address, phone number and which clinic they plan to attend. One's fishing experience — beginner, intermediate or advanced — should also be included on the registration information.

Kentucky's racing might need support

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Because the betting handle is falling to keep pace with inflation, Kentucky's four race tracks may require financial help from the state, a study suggested Wednesday.

Robert R. Sharp, an Eastern Kentucky University economics professor, told the Kentucky Council on Economic Advisers that problems plaguing race tracks in Kentucky and elsewhere "will obviously require investment."

Sharp said the immediate options available to the state to help Churchill Downs, Keeneland, Latonia and Ellis Park include allowing the tracks to maximize their profits and letting them keep a larger share of the handle.

"Tax relief and take-out rate adjustments could provide additional monies for upgrading track facilities, which would in turn attract more patrons," Sharp said in the current issue of the council's "Review and Perspective" newsletter.

Holloway not necessarily expendable

OTTAWA (UPI) — Rough Riders coach George Brancato said Wednesday the signing of California State quarterback Kevin Starkey does not mean automatic exile from Ottawa for veteran quarterback Condredge Holloway.

Holloway, 29, has asked to be traded after eight years in Ottawa and it was widely felt he became expendable when the Riders signed Starkey Tuesday. Quarterback Jordan Case was also returning to Ottawa for a second year.

Brancato said, however, the 22-year-old rookie import has not been given any guarantee he'll assume Holloway's No. 1 quarterback position. The veteran was entering the option year of his $60,000-a-season contract.

There was speculation that if the Alouettes cannot lure Vince Ferragamo from the Los Angeles Rams then Holloway would be in Montreal before month's end. The Toronto Argonauts were reportedly counting more on obtaining Holloway than Miami Dolphin free agent Don Strock. The Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers have also expressed interest in Holloway.

Errant hammer kills veteran thrower

DOWNERS GROVE, Ill. (UPI) — Track star John Tucker, 24, critically injured during warm-ups for the hammer throw event of the weekend Illini Classic track and field meet, died Tuesday night.

Tucker was struck on the head with the hammer — which includes a 16-pound steel ball — by another athlete whose identity was not disclosed.

He died at Good Samaritan Hospital in Downers Grove where he had been in critical condition since Saturday.

Hass takes pro-am at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Jay Hass carded eight birdies for an 8-under-par 68 Wednesday in the pro-am prelude to the $350,000 New Orleans Open at Lakewood Country Club.

Defending champion Tom Watson, playing with Gov. Dave Treen and New Orleans Saints quarterback Archie Manning, shot a 71.

John Cook came in at 66 and Danny Edwards shot a 66, indicating the tournament that starts Thursday will show a high percentage of below par shooting with the target a $63,000 first prize.

Vandals' Hayes sustains broken hand

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho Vandals' list of spring football injuries expanded again Tuesday when Jay Hayes, a 6-6, 230-pound defensive end, suffered a broken right hand during practice.

Head coach Jerry Davitch said Hayes would be on the sidelines for the rest of the spring as a result of the injury. However, doctors who examined the hand said Hayes would be able to play next fall.

Jury breaks after 6-hour deliberation

NEW YORK (UPI) — The jury in Teddy Brenner's $3 million private antitrust suit against the World Boxing Council and its president, Jose Sulaiman, was unable to reach a verdict Wednesday after six hours of deliberation.

After being charged at 11 a.m. EST, the jury was ushered into the courtroom at 5 p.m., at which time Federal Judge Charles Metzner released the four-woman, two-man jury until 9:30 a.m. today.

During the afternoon, the jury in Manhattan Federal District Court asked for readings from Brenner's and Sulaiman's testimony. They also asked for a definition of the word "discretion" that appears in the WBC rules.

While charging the jury, Judge Metzner gave details to the panel on specific points in the case that they would decide upon. He said that the "burden of proof" was on the plaintiff to show a violation of antitrust laws and that that violation damaged him.

"If the evidence is evenly balanced, then your verdict must be for the defendant (Sulaiman)," said Metzner.

Metzner cited Section 1 of the Sherman Act that says any combination in restraint of trade is illegal. The jury was also instructed to rule on the WBC's counter-claim of $1,500.

"As I am the sole judge of law in this court, you are the sole judge of evidence," Metzner said.

The original suit carried four charges, three of which were struck down by Metzner last Wednesday. Metzner ruled that no evidence had been presented to support Brenner's claims that there was a conspiracy between Sulaiman and promoter Don King, named as a co-conspirator in the suit.

He also said no proof had been submitted to prove Sulaiman manipulated the ratings to favor certain promoters or that fighters were coerced into multi-bout contracts with favored promoters.

That left only Brenner's claim that he was damaged by the WBC suspension in that he could not make a living as an individual promoter.

Brenner's attorney, Pamela Ostrager, tried to prove throughout the trial that Brenner's May 2, 1979, suspension by the WBC was unfair and that Sulaiman "was the judge, jury and executioner in this case."

Richard Cooper, Sulaiman's attorney, painted Brenner as a "boxing traditionalist" who had no use for all the regulations and that his only conception of boxing was two fighters in the ring punching each other.

The suit originally evolved from an agreement Brenner made to pay King $25,000 for the promotional rights to former WBC super featherweight and featherweight champion Alexis Arguello's Feb. 4, 1979 fight with Alfredo Escalera. Brenner said he stopped payment on the check when he learned King was also claiming rights to Arguello's upcoming fights.

Sulaiman, who was on the stand for almost 2 ½ days of the trial that will go into its 11th day Thursday, said Brenner promised him the King matter was settled and, for that reason, he allowed the fight to take place. Sulaiman said that the main reason that Brenner was suspended was for stopping payment on the check after he promised King that he would be paid.

Sampson to announce verdict Sunday

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Ralph Sampson, Virginia's 7-foot-4 sophomore center, will announce at noon Sunday whether he will stay in college or turn professional in a prepared statement from the school, officials said Wednesday.

Sampson, Virginia coach Terry Holland and sports information director Doug Elgin met in University Hall in Charlottesville Wednesday to work out the details of how — or if — Sampson, United Press International's Player of the Year, would announce his decision.

The release will come from the sports information office, Elgin said.

Sampson must make his decision before midnight Saturday to place his name on the NBA's hardship list for the June 9 draft. The NBA office has told Sampson a letter postmarked or dated April 25 would comply with the deadline requirements.

No reason was given for the four-day time lapse between Sampson's decision and the Sunday announcement.

The Dallas Mavericks and Detroit Pistons, who had the worst records in the NBA this season, will flip a coin April 30 to determine which club picks first. Both have said they would take Sampson with that No. 1 pick and have made it plain the Harrisonburg, Va., youngster can command a contract worth more than $1 million annually.

The Sunday statement will not be read at a news conference and it apparently killed tentative arrangements CBS-TV was making to be with Sampson Saturday. Before the Wednesday afternoon meeting, CBS-TV spokesman Jay Rosenstein said that nothing is definite, but the network would like to be in Charlottesville Saturday.

"Whether we will set up live coverage or if we're just going to be there during the day, hasn't fallen into place yet," said Rosenstein. "We did an interview with Sampson (last) Saturday and we would like to follow it up."

Phillips mum about Saints' draft choice

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Saints coach Bum Phillips, trying to rebuild a club that went 1-15 last season and had embarrassed fans wearing bags over their heads, said Wednesday he was more ready than ever for the NFL college player draft but still hadn't decided on his No. 1 pick.

Phillips, who has 17 of his 18 picks left, is leaning toward running back George Rogers for No. 1, but it also could be linebackers Hugh Green or Lawrence Taylor.

"Any one of those three guys are capable of being the No. 1 pick and you'd be proud of any one of them," Phillips said. "They're all big, they're all fast, they're all aggressive and they're all excellent football players."

But as far as the No. 1 choice goes, Phillips wants to keep everyone guessing.

"It gives us a little more opportunity to get an offer or a bribe, which we're not above taking," Phillips said.

He said he would not trade the No. 1 pick unless it would benefit the Saints.

Phillips said he was engaged in serious talks with four clubs in the search for trade prospects and probably would be talking to more before the draft on Tuesday.

His 17 draft picks will allow Phillips to take the No. 1 choice and still have plenty to trade to rebuild the team that gave up an average of 30 points a game last year.

Phillips gave up one of his eighth-round choices to get offensive guard Sam Adams from New England. Phillips said Adams would sign with the Saints later in the week.

"He's a great running guard, he's a great pulling guard," Phillips said. "And he comes from a winning team and he'll bring a winning attitude."

That winning attitude is what Phillips is determined to build and is what Saints owner John Mecom hired him to do last year after Phillips was bounced from the Houston Oilers.

Advice on catching crappies plentiful

Chasing the crappie has become a favorite springtime event.

Advice is plentiful. Bob Pettygrove of Murtaugh tells me May 15 is the date for crappie fishing in C.J. Strike Reservoir.

Jack Hittenbach of Buhl insists there will not be decent crappie fishing in Salmon Falls Reservoir until the swallows make their nests on the cliffs at Grays Landing.

And this is just the advice as to when to fish. You can get 10 different ways to fish for crappie from 10 different fishermen.

Well . . . Swen and partner went to C.J. Strike on the Bruneau arm Friday and Saturday last week.

Friday eve we met a "pro" crappie fisherman in the local pub at Bruneau and he was just stoping to stoke up for the ride back to Mountain Home. Yep, he had 45 of the prized fish and gave me instructions as to where to go, what to use and how to hold my mouth.

Crappie fishermen are that way, they do kiss and tell.

The crappie are on the spawning beds in the upper part of the Bruneau arm near the Jacks Creek Wildlife Refuge.

Those who had staked out their favorite areas had stringers of 30 to 60 fish all one-half to 1½ pounds.

The method for bank fishermen was to find these beds and then use a white or yellow crappie jig. The pro from Mountain Home showed me his beat-up plastic jig that had been torn to pieces. He noted that it was the third of the day. "Just put a bobber about two feet above the jig and then cast out about 20 to 30 feet, and if the wind is making waves just let it bounce up and down and the crappie will do the rest."

The boat fishermen were having their best luck in what they called "the old apple orchard," a flooded part of the lake that was an apple orchard. They just anchor over the crappie beds in this area and use the same method as the bank fishermen.

Also, some reports of large channel catfish were related to Swen.

My partner and I decided to give the large catfish a try and were advised to use "cut bait."

We did not come up with the channel catfish, but did land some one to two-pound yellow cats. Also came up with some bluegill while fishing on the bottom.

It was a very pleasant weekend, and we even quit before the storm came in Sunday afternoon.

Twin Falls angler offers ride

John Conlan of Twin Falls, phone number 734-1365, age 27, would like a fishing partner. He has transportation and would like to share rides with others. John likes to fish most anywhere, and would be a real good fishing buddy.

I've been asked about the toll-free number for Citizens Against Poaching (CAP). You can turn in a poacher and remain anonymous by calling 1-800-632-5999.

The CAP is a nonprofit corporation and is separate from the Department of Fish and Game.

and MARV CLEMONS
Times-News writers

The closure of Sun Valley and Pomerelle Sunday marked the end of a "mixed" ski season for the area's four ski operations.

Three of the four reported average seasons, mostly because of a lack of snowfall and the mild winter weather. The resorts reporting averaged seasons include Pomerelle, Magic Mountain and Soldier Mountain.

The standout is Sun Valley.

Final figures are not complete but Sun Valley officials feel the just-finished ski season may prove to be the best in the resort's history.

"This year is going to be the best season we've had," Chuck Webb, assistant Sun Valley manager, said Wednesday. "It will probably the best in Sun Valley's history for skier count."

Webb said the top skier count for the previous best season is "around" 452,000 first rides. That figure includes all skiers taking their first ride on a lift each day.

"We will probably top that this year," Webb said. "I don't expect that we'll come close to the 500,000 mark but we should top it (452,000) by a little."

Although many variables are involved in a ski season, Webb said word of mouth and a heavy marketing campaign were factors in the strong figures.

"None of the other western resorts had snow (at Christmas time) and at first we had a hard time getting the word out that we did have great skiing," Webb said. "Once the skiers went home and talked and found out that we had good skiing, it all came together. We had many people come to Sun Valley that normally go to another resort instead of here."

Sun Valley planned to open Dec. 12-13, but a heavy snowfall on Dec. 5-6 allowed the lifts to open a week early. The season continued right through Easter day when two-thirds of Baldy was still open to skiing.

"God must have been with us. We opened in a snowstorm and we closed in a snowstorm since we had a good snowfall the night before we closed. That always makes it great," Webb said.

Webb expects final skier counts to be compiled by the end of the week.

Woody Anderson, owner of both Pomerelle and Magic Mountain, not only had one average season but two since he is in charge of both resorts.

Jody Anderson, manager of Magic, said the main reason why her mountain didn't have a good season was because the people in the valley were content with warm weather.

"How can you get people enthusiastic about skiing when the weather in the valley is hot," she said. "You can't get people to ski when they are playing tennis, jogging and riding bikes."

However, Anderson said the season wasn't a complete loss.

"I'm sure we had the same kind of season as everyone of the other resorts in southern Idaho," Anderson said. "Fair, but by no means excellent."

A skier puts on his skis before a run at Sun Valley's Dollar Mountain. Sun Valley may have had a record ski season.

Scott Zimmerman, who is in charge of the bookeeping operations for Magic and Pomerelle, said Pomerelle probably had a little bit better of year than the surrounding resorts.

"We got that big snowfall in December and because of our altitude, we were able to keep the snow on the ground and we were pretty happy about that," Zimmerman said. "Numberwise, I don't think we were hurt as bad as some of the other areas because we were able to keep our snow and operate on a daily basis up until last Sunday."

But Zimmerman said his peers are looking forward to next year.

"According to the weather reports, it should be a little bit wetter next season than it was this season," he said with a laugh. "But predictions are just predictions so you never can tell."

Soldier Mountain owner Claude Hinkle had nothing unusual to report about the success of his operations.

"We didn't have a great season, but we didn't really get killed either," he said. "Numberwise, we were down this year because of the lack of the white stuff on the course, but it went pretty much the same as it has the past couple of years."

Scouts offer backpacking course

TWIN FALLS — The Snake River Area Boy Scout Council's High Adventure team will conduct a weekend basic backpacking training course May 1-2.

The course is open to anyone who is at least 14-years-old, not just Boys Scout leaders. It will take place at Boy Scout Camp Roach on the Snake River across from Banbury Hot Springs.

The course will include audio visuals and demonstrations covering health and safety and all areas of first aid on the trail, backpacking trips, trail conservation, photography, food and personal equipment, fishing, planning and leadership.

The training staff will include experienced backpackers and representatives of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area staff.

The cost is $9 which covers a large packet of printed material, a patch and segment and Saturday's dinner. Participants must bring their own breakfast and lunch plus cooking and camping gear.

Check-in is May 1 at 6 p.m. Participants will pack in their gear one mile to set up camp. The course will conclude with graduation May 2 at 8 p.m. Registration can be done at the Boy Scout Center. For more information call Mike Devitt at 733-2067.

Optimists to hold fishing derby

JEROME — The fifth annual fishing derby sponsored by the Jerome Optimist Club will be held May 2 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There is no age limit or entry fee for the event which will be held at a pond five miles north and three and a half miles east from the center of Jerome.

"We don't set an age limit on people entering the derby, but it's mostly for children," Brent Lierman, co-chairman of the event, said.

The pond, which is 150-feet-by-75-feet, has carp and catfish and will also be stocked with 1,000 pounds of trout donated by area hatcheries, Lierman said.

Prizes will be awarded to both boys and girls for the largest and smallest fish caught.

Pomerelle's Whiting named top ski instructor in region

RUPERT — Barry Whiting of Rupert, a member of the Pomerelle Ski School staff the past four years, has been named "instructor of the year" in the Northern Intermountain Professional Ski Instructors Association.

Whiting was nominated for the honor by the directors of the Pomerelle-Magic Mountain Ski School, Harold Stanger and Lex Kunau of Burley. He was awarded a large bronze traveling plaque and a smaller permanent award during the spring clinic and meeting held at Targhee a week ago. Other ski schools in the NIPSIA include Sun Valley, Targhee, Bogus Basin, Brundage, and Soldier Mountain.

This is the first year the award has been made and will continue as an annual event during spring clinic and business meeting.

A grocer by profession, Whiting says he probably sells as many ski school lessons in his store as he does groceries during winter months.

"In my business (A&B Market in Rupert) I get an opportunity to meet a lot of local skiers. I always tell them the importance of taking lessons from a certified ski school if they want to enjoy skiing and avoid injuries," Whiting said.

"I also try to encourage other instructors to achieve certification and to participate in the instructor's organialion. It benefits all of us and our students as well," he said.

Whiting does most of his instruction at Pomerelle and has also been a guest instructor at Sun Valley and Magic Mountain. He has worked in clinics, helping other instructors prepare for certification. He was certified as an associate instructor last year, the directors said, and has shown outstanding qualities of leadership and cooperation with the ski school and the public.

Three caught, fined for destruction of Forest Service sign

By STU MURRELL
Special to The Times-News

The Magic Valley is a great area for the spring recreationist, and people are enjoying our fish and wildlife resources. However, some are also causing problems for conservation officers because of their unsportsmanlike behavior.

Kit Christensen, conservation officer in Twin Falls, reports he apprehended three individuals from Rupert, Paul and Burley shooting holes in a U.S. Forest Service sign, shooting bottles and carrying an uncased firearm in the field without a hunting license.

Charges against the individuals included destruction of U.S. government property, littering and carrying an uncased firearm without a hunting license. They paid $400 in fines and restitution for the Forest Service sign. Two of the defendants were given a total of 25 days in jail with 21 days suspended, and one individual served four days in the Cassia County Jail.

Shooting signs and other destructive use of firearms is a serious problem in Idaho. It is dangerous to people and livestock and creates a very poor impression of the gun owner. It lends weight to the argument which calls for removal of firearms from private ownership.

Plinking in a safe place is fun and is a good way for the youngster to learn correct gun handling — if properly supervised. However, a person should pick up the targets or cans they have been using and should never shoot bottles. Leaving this type of material around can lead to a littering charge.

One of the common questions parents ask is, "Can I take my youngster, who is under 12 years old and not yet eligible to purchase a hunting license, out to a gravel pit and teach him how to shoot by practicing at targets?" The answer is "yes" if they do not shoot or hunt any live animals or birds.

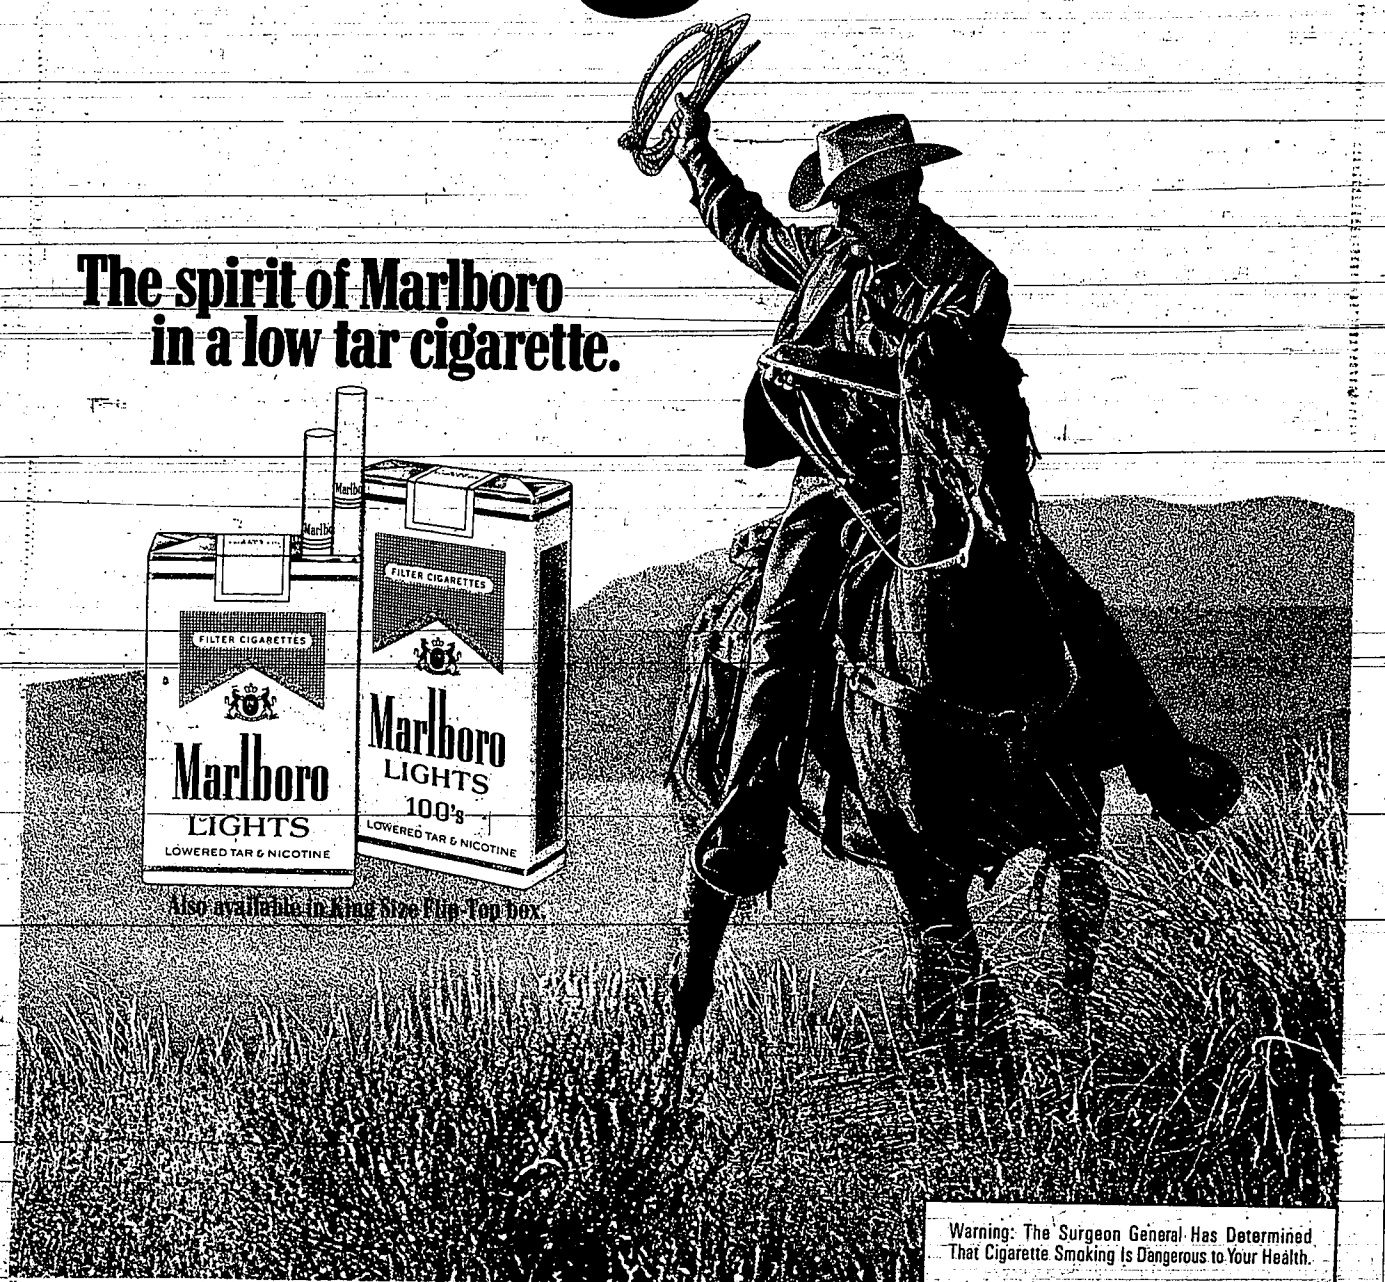

A person must have a hunting license to hunt any of the unprotected or predatory species in Idaho. These include the starling, English sparrow, wild pigeon, skunk, jackrabbit, snowshoe hare, common ground squirrels, rockchuck, porcupine, badger, weasel and coyote. All other species of wildlife are protected or classed as game which can be hunted according to regulations.

It is illegal for a person to shoot at nongame fish in the water because of safety reasons, but it is legal to hunt them with a bow or crossbow. However, a person needs a fishing license to bow-hunt nongame fish.

He has mastered many skills

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Lorin Hoskins of Twin Falls believes he lived his working years through the best era in American history.

He will be 78 in May.

"I missed the real privation of the frontier," he said. But what he gained was growing up in a time when neither college degrees nor government regulations, but only his own ingenuity, dictated what an inexperienced youth could tackle.

Although the longtime Twin Falls resident makes no claim to doing anything spectacular, he has learned several trades and done a wide variety of work, most of which he would never be allowed to attempt now, without special training, licensing or other conditions.

"You name it, I've done it," he said.

The list covers only part of the occupations Hoskins has been involved in. He has run steam engines, raised cattle, worked in a flour mill, operated a bean elevator and wrecking yard as well as his own watch repair shop, dug wells, was in partnership in a logging business, started a sawmill north of Stanley and helped develop the mechanical equipment at the first French fry plant Ore-Ida started.

At the spud plant in Ontario, Ore., he figured out a motor which spun a disc on which the potatoes were moved. At first the motor rotated too fast, throwing the spuds clear across the room. Hoskins simply slowed down the motor until it performed satisfactorily.

"All you have to do is use your head," he said. "Thinking power is worth 10 times what you do with your back."

Mostly he worked for himself, realizing early that this was more lucrative. He would work for someone else only until he learned the "tricks of the trade."

He also made money and went broke several times without qualms.

Whenever he went broke he would go to work for someone else until he could get on his feet financially for the next venture.

His unconcern about changing occupations, making or losing money, contrasts with today's emphasis on job security and the tendency to stay in one type work because of financial uncertainty, even though it's distasteful.

Perhaps Hoskins' free-wheeling youth gave him the independence and assurance necessary for his varied and colorful experiences.

Born in what is now Umapine, Ore., 12 miles from Walla Walla, Wash., May 13, 1903, Hoskins moved to Twin Falls in 1911 with his family. The family came by horse-drawn hack in an 11-day journey.

Hoskins said there's hardly a crevice or cave he didn't explore in the Snake River canyon as a boy. There were lots of rattlesnakes and killing a rattler was a common event; although Hoskins said rattlesnakes are not as dangerous as widely believed. Unless they are struck or surprised they crawl away, but even when they do coil to strike, "you're in no danger if you stop," he said.

Among his boyish pranks Hoskins once tied a rattlesnake up and was going to watch it devour a mouse, but his dad happened along and beheaded the captive creature.

Hoskins said he, a brother and a neighbor boy "practically lived at Pillar Falls," swimming in the river, hunting clams and exploring caves in a Tom Sawyer-like existence.

With boyish wisdom, they were always careful to tie ropes around themselves when they were crawling in the canyon crevices in case they fell.

But while this seemed like an idyllic existence, young Hoskins thought he wanted to see his old home territory, so when he was 14 he and a friend, Dewey Barga, ran away from home.

When they got to Umapine their parents had already notified authorities and the youthful Children often are inattentive to needs of elderly parents

By ELLEN MAY GOLDBERG
© Chicago Sun-Times

It is not uncommon for children to be unresponsive and unsympathetic to the needs of elderly parents and relatives.

The elderly are often viewed as a burden, their needs an imposition. This has been the prevailing attitude for the last half century.

Times have changed, though. Those children have become the fastest-growing population segment in the country — the elderly — they have sent up a howl that can be heard nationwide.

They have organized forceful pressure groups. They have taken their needs and complaints to their representatives, who have taken them to Congress, where laws have been passed to meet some of their needs.

What the representatives and lawmakers can't do, however, is teach youth to be more responsive to the problems of aging. For this, parents must take full responsibility — their own actions and attitudes toward the elderly will affect their children. The schools and the media can have a positive impact, too.

How can a supportive attitude toward aging be fostered? As with all other attitudes, by setting good examples.

You are being supportive when you take the time to help an elderly relative who no longer can manage all his daily needs alone. You are being supportive by encouraging your teen-age children to help care for elderly relatives. By expecting them to help, you are laying the groundwork for help when you can no longer completely care for yourself.

Often, by being too proud to admit they need help, parents deny their sons and daughters the opportunity to help.

How does an elderly person let his children know he needs help and affection without sounding maudlin? How does he find the courage to talk about the changes aging brings? By being truthful, by facing facts.

"It takes me twice as long to do half as much," sounds better than, "Go ahead without me. I can't keep up with you anymore."

"Would you ask George if he would go over my bank statements every month? I'm not as accurate as I used to be," sounds better than, "I must be losing my mind. I'm so mixed up all the time."

"Dad and I feel our home is more than we can handle comfortably any longer. We'd like to spend some time talking over a move, perhaps to the Sun Belt. We respect your judgment and would like your help in our decision."

This gives a positive attitude toward helping grandparents: "Let's all go over to the folks' Sunday morning and give their place a good, thorough cleaning. I notice they can't handle it too well lately. I suggested it to Grandma, and she was delighted."

Isn't that statement better than this? "Oh, dear, it looks like I'll have to give up my Sunday TV program. The folks' place is a mess, and someone is going to have to dig in. It looks like it's going to be me."

When parents don't encourage and expect supportive attitudes and service from their own children, they are failing to train them in kindness and caretaking. And by so doing, they are robbing themselves of future caretakers.

They like mobile park living

By JACK V. FOX
UPI Newsman, retired

OXNARD, Calif. (UPI) — There was a time — and not too long ago — when my wife and I would have said we wouldn't be caught dead spending our retirement years in a mobile home park.

But that's where we are. And we like it tremendously.

We grew up in a generation which called them trailer camps, with all the tawdriness that term implies.

Rusting cars alongside flimsy trailers on axles. Freezing in winter and stifling in summer. Primitive bathroom facilities if not outhouse toilets. Butane gas for cooking and kerosene lamps to read by.

We knew things had changed just from passing glimpses from the highways of tidy colonies of mobile homes but we still thought them not our lifestyle after years of owning a home and then renting big city apartments.

But we weren't prepared for the mobile homes of the 1980s.

Some have split-level floor plans. Many display sidings resembling brick or stone — and some have the real thing.

They could be hauled away in an emergency — the one thing they don't have is basements. But it would have to be some emergency.

A second misconception is that they are small, a crowded space where even a lone couple falls over one another.

The mobile home we bought has two bedrooms, a den, a family TV area, a living room, dinette, kitchen, two bathrooms and an enclosed porch. It has a carport and a patio barbecue space.

There is a small vegetable garden where we are growing corn, tomatoes, asparagus, beets, bell peppers, and strawberries. And ours is not unusually large for a mobile home today.

It is about a four-iron shot from the beach. We looked up and down the Pacific coast from the Mexican border to north of Santa Barbara and we never came close to finding a regular house or condominium we could afford located close to the ocean.

One reason that mobile homes are so much less expensive, of course, is that you do not own the land in parks like ours. You pay a monthly rental for your space. Such rentals have been going steadily upwards as inflation and the popularity of mobile homes increases and a number of communities have imposed rent freezes.

The rental fee in our park also entitles residents to use of a large clubhouse with a dining and dancing area for special occasions, a swimming pool, exercise rooms, a billiard room and a card room.

It is an adults-only community — no permanent residents under 18. That is the case with many mobile home parks and the fairness of such discrimination on grounds of age is certainly open to question.

Another restriction is that you must occupy your own place. It cannot be rented out.

It has led to a preponderance of residents who either are retired or whose children have left home although the parents are still working. We have found them to be a lively, well informed cross section of people.

Among the men there are a retired Lockheed executive, a former fighter pilot and a retired university professor. Among the women are a former New York department store buyer, an accountant and a nightclub singer. A number of the women are widows.

If you want privacy and seclusion, you can have it. People will leave you alone. But if you are a joiner, this is also the place!

And you can have one dog as a pet.

Oldsters helping peers

Health Advocacy project helps doers and receivers

By HAROLD BLUMENFELD
Newspaper Enterprise Association

The elderly are the nation's primary health-care consumers.

But some older people don't know where to go when they are ill. They cannot cope with the lack of transportation, the wide array of available services and the many health and insurance records that must be completed.

They usually are eligible for financial assistance with their medical bills, but they may not know where or how to obtain it.

Older people who are in better health and who have more know-how can be organized to help their less fortunate peers.

Such a project has been set up at the University of Michigan's Institute of Gerontology. It is called "Health Advocacy for Older People."

"The project is designed to improve the access to and quality of health care for non-institutionalized older people," says Director Marvin L. Hackney. "First, older people are being trained to be health counselors for their peers.

"They will provide escort for elderly patients to and from medical appointments, help them locate special health-care services and equipment, file necessary insurance forms and make sure they understand a doctor's or pharmacist's instructions.

"They also will set up community health-education workshops with a wide range of topics, such as managing high blood pressure, handling medical emergencies, consumer rights and normal age-related changes that occur with their hearing, vision, mobility and memory.

At one of the University of Michigan workshops, volunteers were advised: "Pick out one or two people you can do something special for. And add to them slowly. As an older person, you can't do too much. Yet, just keeping in touch with others benefits both of you."

One of the peer counselors had been a truck driver for 23 years. Now he works part time as a security guard.

He says that the health-education workshops that he helps to organize provide useful information for the participants and answer questions related to their individual needs.

"In a future program," he says, "the audience will bring along their own prescription medicines and will be told how to take them with no danger of an overdose. People enjoy the chance to get goether and learn new things."

You don't have to be part of an organized program to help seniors less fortunate than you.

"When I do some good for others," he tells me, "I feel good."

I also know a 70-year-old woman who shuttles others her age to doctor, market and church. She makes four or five calls nightly to people living alone.

"I have a lot of health to give and a lot of love to give," she explains. "It blesses me to know that I can be of service to others."

HEARTLINE: My sister just lost her husband. About a week after the funeral a man showed up on her doorstep with a ring that he said her husband had ordered for her, saying that he had even put a deposit down on the ring.

Well, she is plainly stumped because he never bought her a piece of jewelry in her life. However, she thought that he may really have wanted her to have it (like a last minute gesture, since he knew for several months that he was dying), so she paid the remainder of the balance on the ring — several hundred dollars. I am very skeptical about it all, and I'm wondering if this may be some kind of racket, taking advantage of persons recently bereaved. Have you ever heard of such a thing? F.H.

ANSWER: There's really no way you can be sure, unless the salesman had a sales order or some other document which your brother-in-law had signed. And, when you think about it, how many businesses will accept a deposit on anything without a sales agreement and signature?

However, there is such a con game as this and we call them "funeral chasers." These are people who watch the obituary columns and shortly thereafter will appear at the home of the widow or widower with a Bible, piece of jewelry or some such item and claim that the deceased person made a down payment on the item and that the balance is still owing. The swindler can be pretty convincing by displaying knowledge of the victim and the deceased. Of course, this knowledge was obtained from the obituary column.

Heartline

HEARTLINE: I am retired, age 63. I was a legal secretary for 37 years. I find that I cannot meet my expenses on my limited retirement income and must get a parttime job. I am having difficulties I never believed would be possible.

I have run up against one company that I believe is discriminating against me because of my age. I do not want to go to an attorney because I cannot afford the fee. Could you tell me how to get in touch with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission so I can make my complaint known? L.O.

ANSWER: The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has authority to monitor discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, age or national origin, in the hiring, promotion, pay or any other aspect of employment. The EEOC investigates and attempts to settle complaints and assists with litigation.

Their address is: Director, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Washington, D.C. 20506.

HEARTLINE: I am 61 years old and will retire at the end of this year. I am trying to get together some reference material and other resources which will help me in planning for some of the things that will come up after retirement.

I have just started reading your column in the Dallas Morning News and find it very informative. I noticed recently that you mentioned a specific leaflet of free information that you send to your readers for the asking. I was wondering if you have other free leaflets and what topics they might cover. H.S.

ANSWER: Yes, we do have many leaflets pertaining to a rather varied assortment of topics. Of course we can't list all of them here, but will mention the most popular ones. If you should want to order any of them, simply send 50 cents for postage and handling and adress your request to the proper department.

They include Tips on Buying Health Insurance, Department T; Medicare Supplement Tips, Department MST; Report on Gaps in Medicare, Department G; Hobbies (suggestions and bibliography) Department H; Small Claims Court, Department SCC; Home Repair Ripoffs, Department HR.

Rembmer to send your requests to the proper department at our address at 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: I am badly in need of reading glasses, bifocals I guess, but I cannot afford the prices I have been quoted so far. I just saw an advertisement in a little sale catalog for a pair of reading glasses for $11.95. Now I can afford these, but I don't really trust it. Do you think I should order them? P.G.

ANSWER: We wouldn't advise anyone to buy their glasses through the mail. They most likely will end up not being what you need and that money will have been wasted.

Interest groups clash

The Nation's Health

Editor's Note: This is the 13th in a series of 15 articles exploring "The Nation's Health." In this article, Carroll L. Estes, director of the Aging Health Policy Center at the University of California, San Francisco, discusses the social and economic conditions that contribute to health problems for the aged. This series, written for Courses by Newspaper, a program of University Extension, University of California, San Diego, was funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Everyone connected to the health care industry wants change: improved access to care, better quality, lower cost. There is less unanimity on the means to achieve these goals.

There is a struggle among special interest groups to influence health care policy in order to benefit their own constituents. Although legislators and other government officials are pledged to represent the public interest in attaining better health care, the unfortunate truth is that the clash of interest groups that determines government policy in a democratic society does not necessarily benefit the public.

Today the government — at the local, state, or federal level — oversees all elements of health care. State medical and dental practice acts define who can practice and what tasks health professionals can perform. If a hospital wants to build a new wing or add new equipment, it must seek permission from various state regulatory bodies. States also regulate nursing homes and health insurance companies.

In addition, the government controls the marketing of drugs. It is the major payer, directly or indirectly, of medical services. It is also an important provider of health care through the Veterans Administration, programs for Indians and military personnel, state mental health systems, and municipal hospitals. The education of health professionals, medical research, and hospital construction are all heavily subsidized by government.

This extensive government involvement is in large part the result of pressures from health interest groups that have influenced health legislation and regulation. These interest groups represent (1) medical, dental, nursing, and other health professions, as well as non-professional workers; (2) hospitals, nursing homes, and other institutional providers; (3) health insurance companies; (4) drug and hospital supply companies and equipment manufacturers; (5) medical and other health professions schools; (6) health planning agencies; and (7) a multiplicity of other providers, such as home health agencies.

The big four are physicians, hospitals, insurance companies, and the drug industry. While health interest groups support improved health care through the measures they promote, they want to insure that their own interests are protected as well.

Self-regulation

The health professions made the earliest attempts at influencing government policy through advocacy of legislation that delegated authority to licensure boards consisting of representatives of the profession, for example, medicine or dentistry. Regulation by the profession starts with a licensure requirement that places restrictions on who can enter the profession.

Educational requirements are defined and examinations devised. Schools and their curricula must be approved. Such an approach toward ensuring competence in a profession also limits the number of persons in that profession.

Physicians have had the greatest success in regulating themselves. Approval of medical schools once resided with the American Medical Association, which had a vested interest in restricting the number of physicians. Consequently, the number of approved medical schools declined, educational requirements increased, and the physician-to-population ratio fell.

However, no requirements for competence were instituted for practicing physicians. As a result, those who had received their training many years previously were not required to keep abreast of the tremendous increase in medical knowledge. This selective approach toward quality control in medicine has been criticized as overly protective of practicing physicians, some of whom might not be able to pass a reexamination for licensure.

The legislative success of the medical profession, coupled with its subsequent high status and incomes, encouraged other professions to emulate doctors' political behavior, and more than 30 health professions have now adopted similar approaches to quality control. Other groups have had success in establishing licensure and educational requirements, but most, like nurses, for example, have remained subordinate to physicians.

There is continual competition in the legislative marketplace among different professions and providers to increase their own roles and responsibilities at the expense of other professions.

Many of the present legal restrictions cannot be justified in terms of quality of care, as there are usually more direct approaches to ensuring professional competence. Rather, these regulations are often stimulated by the prospect of economic benefit for one of the health professions.

Special Interest Legislation

Competition among the health professions has not generated public controversy, principally because it is not general knowledge that legislative benefits to the professions increase the cost of care. Hospital construction subsidies, present methods of hospital and physician payment, programs to alleviate the shortage of nurses seem small and uncontroversial and are thus not very threatening to politicians who support such special interest legislation.

Over the years, federal financing of health programs has increased dramatically; health interest groups have proliferated, and national health organizations have become entrenched in Washington, D.C.

More controversial legislation such as national health insurance, which would redistribute benefits among different socioeconomic groups in society, has been proposed since the 1930s. By providing extensive political support to congressmen and conducting extensive public relations programs, organized medicine was able to oppose such proposals effectively.

The 1960s, however, ushered in a new wave of federal health policy. Rising costs of care had become a burden for the aged and the poor, and Congress and the executive branch wanted to respond to this politically popular cause.

Doctors and hospitals saw proposed federal legislation to meet the health needs of the poor and elderly as a grave threat to their independence. The battle raged through three presidential administrations. In order to secure its passage, the government made certain that the legislation was structured to include participation of doctors and hospitals.

The legislation assured that traditional billing practices of doctors and hospitals would not be eroded. Millions of the poor and aged received vital medical care, through Medicare and Medicaid, but the costs far exceeded early estimates. Total health expenditures increased enormously, from $10.8 billion in 1950 to $43 billion in 1967, and $150 billion in 1977. Government costs rose even more rapidly. Because of their astute dealings in Washington, physicians and hospitals were large beneficiaries of these government-support programs.

Health Interests and Public Interests

Health interest groups have a "concentrated" interest in health issues. For example, because their incomes will be most affected by policies specifying how they are to be paid in such programs as Medicare and Medicaid, physicians have an incentive to lobby for favorable legislation. Although patients are affected by such policies, the impact is relatively small; health is only one of many services they buy, and they are often unaware that legislation affecting methods of payment and quality control will increase the prices and taxes they must pay. Interest groups provide campaign contributions and votes; Congress and the elected officials in the executive branch respond because they want to be reelected.

Because of the rapidly rising costs of medical care in the late 1960s, however, the executive branch of the federal government proposed controls on health expenditures, placing itself in opposition to health interest groups. To date, these groups have been able to forestall strong controls in Congress and many state legislatures.

Nevertheless, the dominance of health interest groups in the health policy arena, which had long gone unchallenged, has begun to generate opposition from many sectors of society — other health interest groups, government, labor, and business groups — who are straining under the staggering costs of health care.

It is possible that increased competition in the legislative marketplace from a more diverse set of participants will lessen the dominance of a few selected groups. Such competition might, in the long run, lead to a less costly, more rational health care system.

Weddings

MR. AND MRS. DOUG WARD

MR. AND MRS. BRENT PUTZIER

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD S. BAER

Guymon-Ward

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Guymon and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ward, all of Twin Falls.

The bride wore a white organza gown with a high lace neck and puff sleeves. The shear yoke was edged with a lace ruffle topped with white pearls. The hem and attached chapel train were edged in lace and accented by an apron effect topped by a satin bow and streamers in the back.

Terri Ford, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Janice Grant, Caroline Wilcock, both of Twin Falls, and Melodie Albertson of Van Couver, Wash.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the Turf Club. Assisting with serving were Cathy Jones, Becky Jones, Sandy Spady, Kandie Lee and Jill Baily. Gloria Jensen was in charge of the guest book. Julie Wills provided the music.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Twin Falls High School. The bridegroom graduated in 1978 from Twin Falls High School and is now employed by Gem Spraying Service.

The couple will reside in Twin Falls.

Rountree-Putzier

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyal E. Rountree of Kimberly and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Putzier of Twin Falls.

The bride wore a gown of chiffonet with lace. The bodice had a Queen Anne neckline, trimmed with pearls and lace and Victorian sleeves. The A-line skirt of chiffonet had a chapel train with the hemline edged with matching lace.

The bride fashioned her white horsehair hat which was trimmed with matching lace with a fingertip veil of imported English tulle, attached by three roses. She carried a silk bouquet of yellow and blue roses. All of the flowers were made by the bride—and—arranged—by—Margaret Jones of Kimberly.

Linda Slane, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Lori Bean and Joan Piercy of Kimberly and Shelley Rountree, niece of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Soloist was Marilyn Rountree of Wendell.

A reception was held in the basement of the church. Peggy Scholl of Kimberly was in charge of the guest book.

The cake was made by Jeanne Brown of Kimberly.

Reception assistants were Shari Rountree, Marilyn Rountree, Denise Putzier and Karen Egan. Jeanne Hansen and Lisa Dohse were in charge of the gift table.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burt of Twin Falls, grandparents of the bride, and Dewey King and Rilley Swanson, grandparents of the bridegroom.

Smith-Baer

The ceremony was performed at Our Savior Lutheran Church with the Rev. Lothar Peitz officiating. Helen Iverson served as organist and Donna Kovar was solist.

The bride is the daughter of Eilen and Bill McCauley of Twin Falkls and the bridegroom is the son of Margaret and Howard Baer of Drexel Hill, Pa.

Stephanie Baer was flower girl and Christopher Baer was best man. Darrell McGreer was groomsman.

Candlelighter was Joseph Tursi and serving as ushers were Virgil Adams and Robert Zogel. Shannon Sudweeks was the guest book attendent.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. Refreshments were served by Frances Irish, Joice Brown and Martha Goodfellow.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Baer of Drexel Hill, Pa., and Mr. and mrs. Joseph Tursi of Upper Darby, Pa. Also the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arne Rommetvedt, and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Smith.

The newlyweds are both officers in the United States Air Force. Future plans have not yet been determined.

Collections seminar today in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — A special collection seminar is scheduled today from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Newest techniques and consumer laws will be outlined by Gene F. Larson of St. Louis, Mo. The seminar is sponsored by Magic Valley Consumer Credit Association, according to Jean Hughes of Twin Falls, president.

GENE F. LARSON

Larson is a lecturer for the International Consumer Credit Association. The 45,000-plus-membership association named him the "Outstanding Consumer Credit Executive in America."

He has recently authored the book, Prevent Bankruptcy Losses, which was written to help the creditors cope with the debtor under the new Bankruptcy Code. Larson also has authored other books, numerous articles and the nationally known telephone collection guide, The Unforgettable.

In this comprehensive seminar Larson will help the collector comply with the new laws...and also use them to the advantage of the collector. According to Hughes, this ultimately will serve as an advantage to the good paying customers who constitute more than 95 percent of those to whom credit is granted.

Of special interest will be a portion of the seminar dealing with executive stress, how to cope with it and how certain principles of stress can be utilized to motivate consumers to pay their bills.

Hughes said that this seminar will offer new perspective in the approach of collecting accounts and handling people through proven techniques.

Higgins-Wilson

TWIN FALLS — Marta J. Higgins and John F. Wilson, both of Dallas, Texas, exchanged wedding vows March 21 at Perkins' Chapel on the Southern Methodist University campus in Dallas.

The bride is the daughter of Carlos and Katherine Higgins of Austin, Texas, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mildred Wilson and the late Robert F. Wilson of Twin Falls.

The bride wore a white linen suit and carried a glamelia corsage. Kay Higgins of College Station, Texas, was maid of honor for her sister. Bill Vining of Dallas served as best man.

The bride is a graduate of Las Vegas High School and North Texas State University, Denton, Texas. The bridegroom is a graduate of Twin Falls High School, Idaho State University and Arizona State University, in Tempe.

Both are presently employed by Texas Instruments and are residing in Richardson, Texas.

The big four are physicians, hospitals, insurance companies, and the drug industry. While health interest groups support improved health care through the measures they promote, they want to insure that their own interests are protected as well.

Self-regulation

The health professions made the earliest attempts at influencing government policy through advocacy of legislation that delegated authority to licensure boards consisting of representatives of the profession, for example, medicine or dentistry. Regulation by the profession starts with a licensure requirement that places restrictions on who can enter the profession.

Educational requirements are defined and examinations devised. Schools and their curricula must be approved. Such an approach toward ensuring competence in a profession also limits the number of persons in that profession.

Physicians have had the greatest success in regulating themselves. Approval of medical schools once resided with the American Medical Association, which had a vested interest in restricting the number of physicians. This selective approach toward quality control in medicine has been criticized as overly protective of practicing physicians, some of whom might not be able to pass a reexamination for licensure.

The legislative success of the medical profession, coupled with its subsequent high status and incomes, encouraged other professions to emulate doctors' political behavior, and more than 30 health professions have now adopted similar approaches to quality control. Other groups have had success in establishing licensure and educational requirements, but most, like nurses, for example, have remained subordinate to physicians.

There is continual competition in the legislative marketplace among different professions and providers to increase their own roles and responsibilities at the expense of other professions.

Many of the present legal restrictions cannot be justified in terms of quality of care, as there are usually more direct approaches to ensuring professional competence. Rather, these regulations are often stimulated by the prospect of economic benefit for one of the health professions.

Special Interest Legislation

Competition among the health professions has not generated public controversy, principally because it is not general knowledge that legislative benefits to the professions increase the cost of care. Hospital construction subsidies, present methods of hospital and physician payment, programs to alleviate the shortage of nurses seem small and uncontroversial and are thus not very threatening to politicians who support such special interest legislation.

Over the years, federal financing of health programs has increased dramatically; health interest groups have proliferated, and national health organizations have become entrenched in Washington, D.C.

More controversial legislation such as national health insurance, which would redistribute benefits among different socioeconomic groups in society, has been proposed since the 1930s. By providing extensive political support to congressmen and conducting extensive public relations programs, organized medicine was able to oppose such proposals effectively.

The 1960s, however, ushered in a new wave of federal health policy. Rising costs of care had become a burden for the aged and the poor, and Congress and the executive branch wanted to respond to this politically popular cause.

Health Interests and Public Interests

Health Interest groups have a "concentrated" interest in health issues. For example, because their incomes will be most affected by policies specifying how they are to be paid in such programs as Medicare and Medicaid, physicians have an incentive to lobby for favorable legislation. Although patients are affected by such policies, the impact is relatively small; health is only one of many services they buy, and they are often unaware that legislation affecting methods of payment and quality control will increase the prices and taxes they must pay. Interest groups provide campaign contributions and votes; Congress and the elected officials in the executive branch respond because they want to be reelected.

Because of the rapidly rising costs of medical care in the late 1960s, however, the executive branch of the federal government proposed controls on health expenditures, placing itself in opposition to health interest groups. To date, these groups have been able to forestall strong controls in Congress and many state legislatures.

Nevertheless, the dominance of health interest groups in the health policy arena, which had long gone unchallenged, has begun to generate opposition from many sectors of society — other health interest groups, government, labor, and business groups — who are straining under the staggering costs of health care.

It is possible that increased competition in the legislative marketplace from a more diverse set of participants will lessen the dominance of a few selected groups. Such competition might, in the long run, lead to a less costly, more rational health care system.

Terri Ford, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Janice Grant, Caroline Wilcock, both of Twin Falls, and Melodie Albertson of Van Couver, Wash.

Flowers were all handmade of silk by the bride's mother, grandmother and sister.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the Turf Club. Assisting with serving were Cathy Jones, Becky Jones, Sandy Spady, Kandie Lee and Jill Bally. Gloria Jensen was in charge of the guest book. Julie Wills provided the music.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Twin Falls High School. The bridegroom graduated in 1978 from Twin Falls High School and is now employed by Gem Spraying Service.

The couple will reside in Twin Falls.

Rountree-Putzier

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyal E. Rountree of Kimberly and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Putzier of Twin Falls.

The bride wore a gown of chiffonet with lace. The bodice had a Queen Anne neckline, trimmed with pearls and lace and Victorian sleeves. The A-line skirt of chiffonet had a chapel train with the hemline edged with matching lace.

The bride fashioned her white horsehair hat which was trimmed with matching lace with a fingertip veil of imported English tulle, attached by three roses. She carried a silk bouquet of yellow and blue roses. All of the flowers were made by the bride and arranged by Margaret Jones of Kimberly.

Linda Slane, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Lori Bean and Joan Piercy of Kimberly and Shelley Rountree, niece of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Soloist was Marilyn Rountree of Wendell.

A reception was held in the basement of the church. Peggy Scholl of Kimberly was in charge of the guest book.

The cake was made by Jeanne Brown of Kimberly.

Reception assistants were Shari Rountree, Marilyn Rountree, Denise Putzier and Karen Egan. Jeanne Hansen and Lisa Dohse were in charge of the gift table.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burt of Twin Falls, grandparents of the bride, and Dewey King and Rilley Swanson, grandparents of the bridegroom.

Smith-Baer

The ceremony was performed at Our Savior Lutheran Church with the Rev. Lothar Peltz officiating. Helen Iverson served as organist and Donna Kovar was solist.

The bride is the daughter of Ellen and Bill McCauley of Twin Falkls and the bridegroom is the son of Margaret and Howard Baer of Drexel Hill, Pa.

Stephanie Baer was flower girl and Christopher Baer was best man. Darrell McGreer was groomsman.

Candlelighter was Joseph Tursi and serving as ushers were Virgil Adams and Robert Zogel. Shannon Sudweeks was the guest book attendent.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. Refreshments were served by Frances Irish, Joice Brown and Martha Goodfellow.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Baer of Drexel Hill, Pa., and Mr. and mrs. Joseph Tursi of Upper Darby, Pa. Also the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs Arne Rommetvedt, and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Smith.

The newlywds are both officers in the United States Air Force. Future plans have not yet been determined.

Collections seminar today in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — A special collection seminar is scheduled today from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Newest techniques and consumer laws will be outlined by Gene F. Larson of St. Louis, Mo. The seminar is sponsored by Magic Valley Consumer Credit Association, according to Jean Hughes of Twin Falls, president.

GENE F. LARSON

Larson is a lecturer for the International Consumer Credit Association. The 45,000-plus-membership association named him the "Outstanding Consumer Credit Executive in America."

He has recently authored the book, Prevent Bankruptcy Losses, which was written to help the creditors cope with the debtor under the new Bankruptcy Code. Larson also has authored other books, numerous articles and the nationally known telephone collection guide, The Unforgettable.

In this comprehensive seminar Larson will help the collector comply with the new laws...and also use them to the advantage of the collector. According to Hughes, this ultimately will serve as an advantage to the good paying customers who constitute more than 95 percent of those to whom credit is granted.

Of special interest will be a portion of the seminar dealing with executive stress, how to cope with it and how certain principles of stress can be utilized to motivate consumers to pay their bills.

Hughes said that this seminar will offer new perspective in the approach of collecting accounts and handling people through proven techniques.

Higgins-Wilson

TWIN FALLS — Marta J. Higgins and John F. Wilson, both of Dallas, Texas, exchanged wedding vows March 21 at Perkins' Chapel on the Southern Methodist University campus in Dallas.

The bride is the daughter of Carlos and Katherine Higgins of Austin, Texas, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mildred Wilson and the late Robert F. Wilson of Twin Falls.

The bride wore a white linen suit and carried a gamelia corsage. Kay Higgins of College Station, Texas, was maid of honor for her sister. Bill Vining of Dallas served as best man.

The bride is a graduate of Las Vegas High School and North Texas State University, Denton, Texas. The bridegroom is a graduate of Twin Falls High School, Idaho State University and Arizona State University, in Tempe.

Dear Abby

Youth, 18, needs to change his thinking, not his legs

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen my problem mentioned in your column. I'm bowlegged. I am 18 and not a bad-looking guy, but there's a separation of about five inches between my knees when I stand up straight.

I am so self-conscious about this that I'm afraid to ask a girl for a date. My parents tell me not to worry about it, but I can't help feeling inferior and deformed. I even went to a doctor and asked him if something could be done, and he just laughed at me.

Abby, do you know of any bone specialist who could break my legs and reset them? Or maybe put my legs in braces to straighten them out? Or am I too old for that? I would do just about anything to have straight legs like other guys.

Please don't tell me to thank God that I can walk. (Everybody tells me that.) I am praying that you won't let me down.

BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE

DEAR BOWLEGGED: You have a problem that is far more serious than bowed legs. It's the way you perceive yourself. Please see a psychologist or psychiatrist. He (or she) will not laugh at you. Your THINKING, not your legs, needs straightening out. In the meantime, consider this "prayer":

"God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

DEAR ABBY: How does a person get a letter to you? Our newspaper NEVER prints your address. Also, do I have to sign my name in order to be answered in your column?

WONDERING IN HONG KONG

DEAR WONDERING: Write to ABBY, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. And you need NOT sign your name. Because column space is limited, obviously every letter will not appear in print.

DEAR ABBY: I loved your answer to the Minneapolis man who was embarrassed by the loud laughter of his ladyfriend whenever they went to a comedy. You said, "Hearty explosive laughter is characteristic of an uninhibited, outgoing personality — a healthy plus."

For 25 years, my sister-in-law told me to "hold it down" every time I laughed in public. Even when others around us were laughing more loudly than I, I was told to "tone down" or "be quiet." (Sometimes she wasn't that polite.) It put a damper on my spirits and spoiled my fun, so as much as I like this sister-in-law, I have quit going places with her.

I can't help how I laugh. People have told me I sound like Phyllis Diller. Well, I take that as a compliment, as she seems to be a lady who enjoys life to the fullest and isn't afraid to be herself.

— LOVES TO LAUGH IN NORWALK

Mastered

culprits were jailed until Barga could be sent home. But John Seward Hoskins decided to let his son alone, commenting, "Let him stay there; he'll learn."

And begin to "learn" he did. The youth went into the cattle business with his cousin. Together they purchased some 100 head of cattle for about $10 a head. He went to Finley High School near Kennewick, helping with the cattle after hours and in the summer.

A severe winter, when the thermometer dropped to 32 degrees below zero, ended his first business. There was no hay available and the cattle died like flies.

"I skinned more cows than I ever thought lived," he said. When spring came he had just enough money from the hides to pay the grain bill.

Then he and a cousin loaded their belongings into an immigrant car, with their bedsprings attached to the roof of the freight car, and came to Fairfield. The crops were already planted in the Walla Walla area, but in Camas County the snow was just beginning to break up. It took them from 9 a.m. until late at night to travel by team and sled the three miles to their ranch southwest of Fairfield.

While living at Fairfield Hoskins was chased by a mad dog, but was able to pick up a board as he ran and "finished off the pup." A few days earlier he had shot a dog killing chickens, and both animals were found to be rabid. Hoskins had skinned the first dog and hung up the skin to dry, but had no ill effects.

Once the crops were planted Hoskins returned to Twin Falls and got a job running a steam engine for a threshing crew. It was long hours and hard work but "that's where you get your eats," he laughed, as every farmwife tried to outdo the other in setting a bountiful table.

Hoskins variously topped and hoed beets, worked in a wrecking yard and in 1923 worked at the Twin Falls Flour Mills. Earlier he had learned something about the nursery business from J.A. Walters, a pioneer Twin Falls horticulturalist who came in 1904.

After a brief spell in California where he "nearly starved to death," he returned to Twin Falls as soon as he could save enough money to get back. In 1928 he operated a wrecking yard in La Grande, Ore., selling it to return to Twin Falls during the Depression when he drilled wells for the Twin Falls Canal Co. for $75 per month. He felt very lucky to have this job during a time when many people could not find work.

Several times throughout his life Hoskins was involved in farming. Another successful experience was learning about watch repair. He went to the Elgin watch college and worked in an Ogden shop during World War II before opening his own repair shop in Twin Falls.

He traded this business to join partners with a friend who developed equipment to make tongue and groove logs. They moved to West Yellowstone and had contracts for log cabins there when the Korean War caused customers to cancel their building plans, remembering the gas shortages during World War II. Such conditions did not materialize during the Korean conflict, but it ended Hoskins' thriving business.

Financial setbacks did not discourage him.

"That's just another day in your life," Hoskins said. He figured if you go broke, you just have to change occupations. So he returned to Twin Falls and started laying cement irrigation pipe. He made good money and later worked at a bean elevator, then started one at Welser with a dishonest partner, so that enterprise ended abruptly.

After his experience in the Ore-Ida plant at Ontario, Ore., Hoskins decided again to work for himself, so he went to Rhode Island, repairing motors in potato plants throughout the country. This, too, brought good money but he was not building up any Social Security so he returned to Twin Falls and worked for Corneli Seed Co., and learned electronics.

He worked there for 11 years, until he was 69. He didn't want to retire until his wife, the former Grace Cypher, whom he married in 1940, also would retire. She has three children, Barbara Baisch of Hazelton, Joe Cypher and Victor Cypher, both of Twin Falls.

Lewiston City Attorney fails bar exam

LEWISTON (UPI) — Lewiston City Attorney John H. Clough has flunked the Idaho bar examination and wants to know why.

Clough said he has been notified by the Idaho State Bar that he failed the examination he took late in February at Boise. Five out of 55 who took the examination failed, Clough said. The next examination will be in July.

Clough, who has been practicing law for 16 years, is licensed in Oregon and Pennsylvania and admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court.

He said he has asked the state bar to send him copies of the questions asked during the three-day examination and the answers he gave to those questions.

"I will make a decision on what I plan to do after reviewing this information," Clough said.

His failure of the examination will not affect his status with the city. He has been working since September on a counsel certificate issued by the Idaho Bar Association. This entitles him to give legal advice to the city of Lewiston, but he cannot appear in court. William Fitzgerald, the city attorney in charge of prosecuting city cases in magistrate and district court, will make court appearances in behalf of the city, using information provided by Clough. Fitzgerald is a member of the Idaho bar.

"I want to know the basis for grading," Clough said.

He said one of the reasons for his failure might have been the way he answered the essay questions in the examination.

"After 16 years of practicing law I am able to get rid of the nonsense and get down to the facts," Clough said. "Maybe I didn't write enough. I thought that I spotted all the issues in the question."

Clough said his grade also might have been affected because he did not take the multiple-choice section of the bar examination. It was waived by the state bar.

Clough said he also is attempting to find out how many of the five who flunked the examination were lawyers previously licensed in other states.

Boise family disputes home teaching ruling

BOISE (UPI) — Daniel Adams of Boise said Tuesday he was within his rights to teach his children at home, but the Boise School Board still said it must approve the curriculum before the home teaching could continue.

Adams and his wife, Beverly, both 32, contend they have biblical and constitutional rights to instruct their eight children at home. But the school board Monday referred the matter to juvenile court authorities because Adams had refused to submit the children's curriculum for approval.

"The public school system is teaching a doctrine of secular humanism," said Adams, who noted his children were being taught with materials from Pensacola Christian College.

"The materials (in public schools) and the way it's presented are anti-Christ," said Adams, a home designer and draftsman who works out of his home.

He and his wife, fundamentalist Christians who attend the Trinity Fellowship, said they did not want their children exposed to the "influence" of public schools.

"The sex education and values clarification oppose Christian morals," Adams said. "It would be like the Jews sending their children to the Philistines to be educated."

KUID cuts broadcast hours

MOSCOW (UPI) — Public television station KUID will lay off five employees and cut air time to only five hours a day this summer to meet legislative budget reductions this year.

A higher than expected amount of private donations will allow the University of Idaho television and FM stations to remain in operation, said station manager Arthur Hook.

Under a plan devised by the station management, the television station will broadcast from 3 to 8 p.m. and the FM station from 2 to 8 p.m. on weekdays this summer. On Saturdays, both will be on the air from 6:30 to 10 p.m., and on Sundays, from 6 to 11 p.m.

Six positions at the station will be cut, Hook said. One of those, the promotions manager position, is now unfilled. Another, filled by engineer Bill Koe, would have become vacant this summer as Koe had planned to resign.

Two of the positions are part-time. William Byrd and Cecil Bondurant have half-time teaching and half-time station appointments. Under the plan, both will lose their jobs at the station.

In addition, over 50 percent of the funding for part-time, mostly student employees will be cut. Normally about 30 students work at the station part-time.

Hook said the station's hours may be expanded again in the fall. Hook's plan for reduced hours, staff and programming will have to be approved by the State board of Education before implementation.

Pipeline needs trench across river

ONTARIO, Ore. (UPI) — Northwest Pipeline Corp.'s construction of a natural gas conduit from Stanfield, Ore., to Burley, Idaho, will require the dredging of a trench across the bed of the Snake River north of Ontario, officials said.

Efforts to complete a directional drilling bore beneath the river bed failed and the drilling rig was dismantled and removed after three months of drilling, corporation officials said.

Northwest Pipeline officials said dense rock formations under the river bed caused the failure of the drilling project, which was conducted by Reading and Bates Construction Co., Baton Rouge, La.

The corporation has requested its river-crossing permit be amended to allow the dredging project, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers officials at Walla Walla, Wash., said.

To get the 350-mile pipeline across the river, the corporation wants to dredge an 18-foot-deep, 630-foot-long trench to carry the 24-inch-wide pepe from Oregon to Idaho, said Jim Hanbey, a corps spokesman.

He said the amended application was being processed and still needed clearance from the Idaho Health and Welfare Department and the Oregon Environmental Quality Department.

About 3,500 cubic yards of material from the river bottom would be dredged up, temporarily stockpiled, and then returned to the river bed after the pipeline was in place, Hanbey said.

Board granted authority in lease application conflicts

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Land Board has the authority to determine the size of public land management units and the terms for their lease in cases of conflicting lease applications.

That attorney general's opinion released Wednesday was requested by the director of the Idaho Lands Department, Gordon Trombley.

The opinion, which was written by Deputy Attorney General L. Mark Riddoch, said under Idaho law, a grazing conflict may occur when an existing grazing lease is about to expire. During this period, another individual may submit an application for a grazing lease on the same land.

Riddoch said a problem arises when the new applicant applies for only a portion of the existing but expiring lease unit. The question then arises whether the Land Board must hold an auction limited to the portion of the expiring lease applied for by the new applicant or whether the board has the authority to determine the size and boundaries of the lease.

The opinion said without the power to set the size of lease units, the board would be divested of its authority to "implement and fulfill its responsibilities required by law to assure sound management and maximization of income."

In the event that a new lease application is for a portion of the lands under an existing but expiring grazing lease, the board is authorized to advise the applicant of the management unit established by the board. If the application is to remain valid, the applicant must then submit an amended application for the management unit within a reasonable period of time, the opinion said.

Management conference for career-minded women

BOISE (UPI) — The third annual Women in Management Conference aimed at increasing women's awareness of career and personal development opportunities will be held May 2 at Boise State University.

Conference program leaders will be Trudy Olson, a private sales and management consultant, and Joan Henderson, BSU psychology professor and a psychologist with the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare Children's Mental Health Program.

Ms. Henderson, who received her Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Northern Colorado, will begin the morning's program with a talk on assertiveness.

Ms. Olson will follow with a discussion on motivation and positive expectancy. Ms. Olson has a political science degree from California State University at Los Angeles and her career background is varied, ranging from working in estate planning to public relations for the Bureau of Land Management.

Also scheduled will be an afternoon panel discussion with Constance Brennan, manager of contributions at Boise Cascade Corp.; Phoebe Dyer, vice president of the Idaho First National Bank and manager of the bank's investment department; Claudia Borgna, owner and operator of the Serendipity Fashion House, Inc. and former operations officer of First Security Bank in Garden City; and Mary Schofield, manager of cost accounting at Hewlett-Packard.

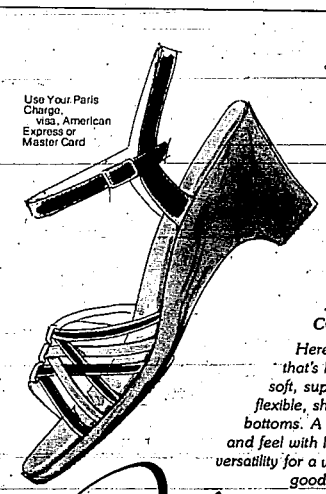

Cost of the conference is $25, which will include lunch and refreshments. Any woman, whether she is employed or not, who is interested in developing marketable management skills is welcome to attend.

Conservative: Liberals not all bad

WEISER (UPI) — Freshman state Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, one of those swept into office last November in a conservative election tide, says he's not sure it was best to drive almost all liberalism out of the Legislature.

"The political spectrum in Boise has shifted so far to the right that there's no liberals left in the Legislature — there's merely a handful," Fairchild said at a Weiser Chamber of Commerce meeting this week.

He said conservative causes in some cases were carried too far and that some causes identified with liberals in the past were beaten down when they probably shouldn't have been. For instance, he rapped the Legislature's refusal to appropriate $150,000 to keep the Office on Aging running during fiscal year 1982.

Two men killed in Utah canyon crash

BRYCE CANYON NATIONAL PARK, Utah (UPI) — A team of park rangers and deputy sheriffs Wednesday worked to recover the bodies of two northern California men killed when their small plane smashed into the base of a cliff in Bryce Canyon.

The effort to recover the remains of Charles Townshend, 52, and Danny McLaughlin, 37, was expected to take up to 16 hours, said Bryce Canyon National Park Superintendent Bob Benton.

"They crashed in a very remote, rugged area," said Benton. "We can't even use horses in there because the terrain is so steep and rugged."

Townshend and McLaughlin were aboard a single-engine Cessna 172, registered in Nevada City, Calif. The wreckage of their plane, which crashed Saturday night, was spotted early Monday about 300 feet below the east rim of the amphitheater-shaped canyon.

Benton said the wreckage was at an elevation of 8,000 feet, spread over a 45-degree slope at the base of a cliff.

They failed to make a scheduled refueling stop Saturday night in Cedar City, Utah. Their plane was officially listed as missing Sunday. The Civil Air Patrol launched an air search for the Cessna Monday morning.

A CAP spokesman said Townshend and McLaughlin had been vacationing in northern Arizona, flying their plane to several locations, for a week.

Prison TV

Inmates begin station in Washington

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI) — The "Walla Walla State Penitentiary Evening News," complete with an anchorman and roving reporter, will be a daily feature soon on new television station KWSP.

The WSP in the station's call letters stands for Washington State Prison. In about two weeks, the institution will become the first prison in the nation to offer a TV station of, by and for the inmates.

Besides news programs, KWSP — a cable operation with its audience limited to the 900 inmates and prison staff inside the walls — plans to carry inmate-acted skits, dubbed "sit-cons," and fireside chats with the warden, Supt. James Spalding.

"It's one of the better things to happen around here in a long time," said prison staffer Larry who has been the driving force behind the television station.

"We'll be the first institution in the country to have something like this."

Plans are for KWSP to run about 12 hours of programming each day. Along with news, entertainment and education, the station will be useful in squelching untrue prison grapevine rumors, said Bloodsworth.

The prison administration plans to use KWSP to air rehabilitation programs prepared by Human Relations Media of Pleasantville, N.Y. Some of these upcoming features are: "The Violent Mind," "Why We Do What We Do: Human Motivation."

Unidentified girl buried in Oregon

PENDLETON, Ore. (UPI) — No one knows yet who she was but 40 people turned out for a graveside service under overcast skies Wednesday for the unknown teen-age girl found slain beside a highway in Eastern Oregon farming country.

"She has changed our lives whether we like it or not," the Rev. Gene Bartells, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said in the 10-minute service at the city-owned Olney Cemetery.

Most at the funeral service were older women.

Bartells described the girl as "a woman without a mother or father as we know them." The presence of an audience at the service, he said, shows "we are loving people. Her passing has not gone unnoticed."

Mine victims close to explosion; investigation continues

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — A coroner says several of the 15 men killed in a coal mine explosion last week apparently had been close to the blast because their bodies had flash burns and their clothing was shredded "rather badly."

Dan Davis, who serves as both coroner and undersheriff for Pitkin County, said Tuesday an inquest into the April 15 explosion at the Dutch Creek No. 1 mine at Redstone — about 40 miles to the southwest — would be convened some time in May.

Tuesday was a day of mourning across Colorado. Flags were lowered to half-staff and public buildings in the Redstone area and other communities of the Roaring Fork River Valley, where the miners lived, were closed. In the state Capitol, Legislators halted floor action for a moment of silent prayer for the dead.

The last three funerals for the victims were Wednesday.

In Glenwood Springs, a team of federal investigators from the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration split into groups to gather detailed information about various aspects of the tragedy. They also laid plans for Thursday's scheduled descent into the mine, operated by Mid-Continent Resources Inc.

"There was some evidence that some of bodies were fairly close to the explosion, evidenced by the fact that their clothing was shredded rather badly," Davis said. "There were burns on the unclothed portions of some of the bodies."

Davis assisted during the weekend as two pathologists, working in the morgue at Glenwood Springs' only mortuary, performed autopsies on the men. Tissue and fluid samples from the bodies were sent to a number of laboratories for testing. The bodies were taken to Glenwood Springs after their recovery Friday.

"Essentially, they (the samples) were sent out for analytic examinations to see if there was anything out of the ordinary which could shed light on the specific cause of death for each individual," Davis said.

One test that could cause a lengthy delay in the release of autopsy findings is designed to reveal the level of methane gas, if any, in the miners' blood.

"That one may be the biggest problem in terms of information return," Davis said. "We want to know the impact on the individuals, if any.

Officials have said they believe the miners died in an explosion of methane gas about 7,200 feet down the mine's sloping shaft.

The government investigation was led by Robert Elam, an administrator and mining engineer with MSHA's Arlington, Va., headquarters.

The team had originally planned to go into the mine today, but the plan was postponed because officials of the independent miners' union wanted to attend funeral services.

Representatives of the miners' union, and company and state officials, will be with the federal team during its inspections.

The two main things the investigators will look for initially underground will be for the source of the methane gas and an ignition source, Elam said.

"We'll look for any evidence of the explosion, including its magnitude and force," he said. "We'll also look for a source of ignition, like the electrical equipment. We need to establish the origin of the explosion."

Company officials had speculated earlier that a pocket of methane was buried under a layer of coal that the miners were working on. According to the theory, there was a "push-out" that released the gas and an electrical spark ignited it.

Elam said that theory was one of the possibilities the investigators would look into.

"When you have a push-out, it is usually associated with a large release of methane," he said. "But it is just one of the possibilities that exist. I don't want to speculate now."

The underground investigation likely will take three or four days, he said. The team also will interview company officials, miners and state officials before completing its on-site investigation.

Sohio earnings rise, Standard down 34%

By United Press International

Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), the sixth largest U.S. refiner, Wednesday reported its first-quarter profits dropped 34 percent from year-earlier levels primarily because of a loss on worldwide refining and marketing operations.

Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), the 13th largest refiner, had a 15 percent gain in first-quarter earnings to $520.4 million, or $2.12 a share, from $450.7 million, or $1.84 a share, in the January-March period last year. Sohio's revenues were up 17 percent to $3.12 billion from $2.66 billion.

Sohio said its profit rise reflected higher crude oil prices and increased interest income, which were largely offset by the windfall profits tax, lower refining and marketing earnings ,and higher exploration expenses.

Analysts had forecast the major oil companies would show profit declines ranging from 20 to 25 percent below the industry's record first-quarter results last year because oil demand has plummeted and created a global oil glut.

Indiana Standard's first-quarter earnings dropped to $376.7 million, or $1.29 a share, from $576 million, or $1.95 a share, in the first three months last year. Revenues were up 21 percent to $7.9 billion from $6.5 billion.

John Swearingen, Indiana Standard chairman, said: "The large earnings decline primarily reflects the poor results of refining, marketing and transportation operations worldwide, which showed a loss of $208.5 million for the quarter compared to a profit of $106.4 million in the first quarter of 1980."

Although Swearingen said he expected Indiana Standard's full-year earnings to be "good," he said "today's market for refined petroleum products is characterized by slumping demand, excessively high inventories and an inability to recover higher costs in the marketplace."

Indiana Standard's first-quarter profits also were reduced by lower U.S. production of oil and natural gas, a near doubling in exploration spending, higher taxes and increased operating costs, he said.

Dow rebounds, prices mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks rebounded during the final hour in heavy trading Wednesday to leave prices mixed following a sinking spell triggered by economist Henry Kaufman's prediction of higher interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 10 points Tuesday after reaching an eight-year high the day before, managed to gain 1.08 points to 1,007.02. It had been down 3 points at midafternoon.

Kaufman, a Salomon Brothers expert whose is widely respected on Wall Street, sparked the afternoon sinking spell with his interest rates prediction and his opinion that the nation was not on the verge of turning the corner on inflation. He also characterized President Reagan's economic proposals as "highly expansionary."

The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.05 to 77.41 and the price of an average share decreased 2 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 0.09 to 134.14. Declines topped advances 794-753 among the 1,910 issues traded.

Analysts said the heavy trading indicated institutions were active because they did not want to miss a major market move. It also indicated that profit takers were busy.

Brokers said smaller investors appeared to have become more aggressive, a sign that in the past has signaled the end of a rally. But the little guy has been a winner over institutions the past few years.

Observers said the market was being bolstered by short-covering, or the replacing of borrowed shares sold earlier.

Montgomery Ward sinks

© 1981 Chicago Sun-Times

Montgomery Ward & Co., continuing to plunge deeper into the red, lost $47.4 million in the first quarter of 1981, the company announced Tuesday.

The loss, marking the company's fifth consecutive losing quarter, surpasses last year's first-period loss of $46.2 million.

Ward's chief executive Edward S. Donnell said the future holds some hope for improvement, but he tempered his optimism with a warning that 1981 would be a tough year for all retailers.

"If sales continue to improve—and we think they will—we expect margins to improve," Donnell said in a statement. "Interest rates, however, will continue to be difficult in the second and third quarters. For the rest of the year, we feel the pluses outweigh the minuses and we see signs of optimism.

"However," he added, "we believe the year will be very difficult for Montgomery Ward and the retail industry."

Colgate earnings off

NEW YORK (UPI) — A $10-million currency exchange loss slashed first quarter earnings of Colgate-Palmolive Co. to 55 cents a share from 61 cents for the year-ago period despite a 6.8 percent gain in worldwide sales.

The manufacturer of Colgate Toothpaste and other products had earnings of $45.1 million on revenues of $1.3 billion in the first quarter, compared with $50.1 million on revenues of $1.2 billion.

In the 1980 first quarter, it had currency exchange gain of $5.1 million.

Anheuser-Busch sets record

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Anheuser-Busch, the big brewery, Wednesday announced record earnings of $41.2 million or 91 cents a share in the first three months of 1981, up from $32.3 million of 71 cents a share in the same period last year.

Sales reached a record $1 billion compared to $870 million in the comparable period a year ago.

August A. Busch III, chairman and president, said the company also had record beer volume sales for the first quarter of 12.8 million barrels, a 9 percent increase from 1980's 11.8 million barrels.

The sales volume is a brewery and industry record for the first quarter of any year and represents about 31 percent of total brewing industry sales as estimated by the United States Brewers Association, the company said.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the Planning and Zoning Commission, Twin Falls County, State of Idaho, that a Public Hearing will be held upon a proposed addition to the Twin Falls County Comprehensive Plan. The proposed addition, in Chapter 12, 12.6 Goals and Policies, is listed below in dark faced capital letters. The Policy addition is intended to clarify the intent of land divisions stated in the Comprehensive Plan.

Chapter 12
12.6 Goals and Policies

Promote orderly and cost-efficient urban development
—Encourage urban growth to areas contiguous to existing urban centers where existing sewer and water systems can be provided in an economical manner.
—Relate land allocation for urban growth to population growth to avoid over commitment of land areas.

—Limit land in the Agricultural Zone to 20-acre parcels minimum, and require any further division in an appropriate zone be approved by either a PUD or Subdivision Ordinance, both of which require a Public Hearing.
—CERTAIN AREAS ARE BETTER UTILIZED FOR RESIDENTIAL USE ON PARCELS LESS THAN 20 ACRES AS INDICATED IN PARAGRAPH 12.2.3. GULLIES, DISCONNECTED PARCELS, CANAL VICINITIES, UNPRODUCTIVE AND NON-IRRIGATED LANDS, ARE FACTORS THAT SHOULD BE CONSIDERED IN DETERMINING APPROPRIATE AREAS. SUCH LAND DIVISIONS MAY BE APPROVED AS PROVIDED BY ORDINANCE.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that a Public Hearing will be held before the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission at the hour of 8:00 P.M. on the 14th day of May, 1981, in the Twin Falls Judicial Building, Twin Falls, Idaho upon said request.

Any and all persons interested may appear at said hearing and register their approval or disapproval of the matter stated above or may file their written comments to said addition at the Office of the Zoning Administrator, 634 Addison Avenue West, Twin Falls, Idaho before said hearing.

Dated this 3rd day of April, 1981.

BEFORE THE IDAHO PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION
IN THE MATTER OF THE IMPLEMENTATION OF SENATE BILL 1120, THE AMENDMENT OF THE MOTOR CARRIER RULES TO BRING THEM INTO CONFORMITY WITH SENATE BILL 1120, AND THE READOPTION BY REFERENCE OF CERTAIN MOTOR CARRIER RULES ADOPTED BY REFERENCE FROM FEDERAL REGULATIONS
CASE NO. P-300-7
LEGAL NOTICE

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the Idaho Public Utilities Commission has proposed to amend its Rules and Regulations Governing Transportation of Persons or Property over Highways of the State of Idaho by Motor Vehicles to bring them into conformity with Senate Bill 1120, signed into law on April 16, 1981. The Commission proposes to do this by eliminating all references and cross references to the transportation of agricultural products (including fresh fruits and vegetables), livestock and livestock feed, and sand and gravel and aggregates thereof from the rules.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that the Commission intends to adopt by reference all recent amendments to the hazardous substances and safety rules published in the Federal Register on or before April 1, 1981, to take effect on or before July 1, 1981.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED That these rule changes will be considered under the Notice-and-Comment provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act of the state of Idaho. Further inquiry on the matter should be addressed to the Commission Secretary. Persons intending to comment upon these proposed amendments must do so on or before May 10, 1981. Comments should refer to Case Caption P-300-7 and should be addressed to: The Commission Secretary, Idaho Public Utilities Commission, Statehouse, Boise, Idaho 83720.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pursuant to Section 67-2342, Idaho Code, Notice is hereby given that the Idaho Health Facilities Review Board will meet at 1:00 p.m. on April 28, 1981, and at 9:00 a.m. on April 29, 1981. The public meetings will be held in the Hall of Mirrors, East Conference Room, 700 W. State Street, Boise, Idaho.

The purpose of the April 28 meeting will be to provide information on Kentucky Certificate of Need program to the Idaho Health Facilities Review Board.

The purpose of the meeting on April 29, 1981 is to deliberate and to make a decision based on a quorum vote of the Board, on seven (7) health care applications received not later than February 2, 1981. The applications to be considered are: 1) the acquisition of a 16 bed free-standing comprehensive chemical dependency treatment program by Bannock Memorial Hospital, Pocatello at a cost of $67,241; 2) a construction project to replace 52 skilled nursing beds by Latah Convalescent Center, Moscow at a cost of $1,815,050; 3) the purchase of a CT scanner by Caldwell Memorial Hospital, Caldwell, at a cost of $884,000; 4) the establishment of rural health clinics in Washington, Payette, Twin Falls, Cassia, and Minidoka counties by Human Services Corporation at a coat of $1,072,654; 5) the purchase of a CT scanner by Mercy Medical Center, Nampa at a cost of $1,017,000; 6) the establishment of a rural health clinic in Caldwell by Community Health Clinics at a cost of $313,705; 7) the establishment of a medical center in Heyburn by Health West, Inc. at a cost of $58,200.

The Board will also discuss or take action on: 1) inquiries from providers requesting exemption from Certificate of Need Review and actions to be taken when activities subject to Board Review have been undertaken without approval by the Idaho Health Facilities Review Board; 2) Review the Certificate of Need Regulations to determine if any regulation changes or regulation re-write is needed.

Public participation at all the Board meetings, consistent with Section 67-2341 and 67-2347, Idaho Code, is encouraged and reasonable accommodations will be made at the public meeting for handicapped persons who want to attend. If you require special accommodations at the meeting, please contact the undersigned in Boise at area code 208-334-4402, not later than April 24, 1981. Dated this 17th day of April, 1981.

ORDINANCE NO. 2010

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, AMENDING SECTIONS 6-4-3(B)(3), 6-4-6, 6-4-8(B)(1)(b)(c)(d)(e) and (2), 6-4-11(B), and 6-4-14(B) OF THE TWIN FALLS CITY CODE REGARDING DOGS.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF TWIN FALLS, IDAHO:

SECTION 1. That Section 6-4-3(B)(3) of the Twin Falls City Code shall be amended to read as follows:

"3. Pay a license fee ~~of thirteen cents ($0.13) per month~~ for each dog licensed. ~~The monthly fee shall be paid for each month for which a valid license is issued.~~ A standard fee shall be set by resolution of the City Council."

SECTION 2. That Section 6-4-6 of the Twin Falls City Code shall be amended to read as follows:

"OWNER'S CERTIFICATE; DOG COLLAR AND TAG: Upon payment of the license fee, the City Clerk or City Animal Control Officer shall issue to the owner a certificate and a metallic tag for each dog so licensed. ~~The shape or color of the tag shall be changed when renewed and~~ shall have stamped thereon ~~the date of expiration,~~ the words 'Twin Falls Dog Tag' and the license number corresponding with the tag number of the certificate. Every owner shall be required to provide each dog with a collar or harness to which the license tag must be affixed and shall see that the collar and the tag are constantly worn. Show dogs during showings are exempted from wearing the collar and tag."

SECTION 3. That Section 6-4-8(B)(1)(b)(c)(d)(e) and (2) of the Twin Falls City Code shall be amended to read as follows:

"6-4-8(B)(1)(b) Pays the person in charge of said Pound an impounding fee ~~of ten dollars ($10.00), plus,~~ which fee shall be set by resolution of the City Council.

(c) ~~Pays the sum of two dollars ($2.00) for each and every day such dog has been impounded as and for board and room, and~~ Pays a board fee, which fee shall be set by resolution of the City Council.

(d) ~~The sum of two dollars ($2.00) as and for a fee for notice of impoundment, and~~

~~(e)~~ (d) Presents a current certificate showing that said dog has been vaccinated with anti-rabies vaccine by a licensed veterinarian. In the event a current rabies certificate is not available, the redemptioner shall deposit ~~the sum of fifteen dollars ($15.00),~~ a fee to cover the cost of a rabies innoculation. The redemptioner shall next cause the animal to be vaccinated against rabies. The City will transmit from the deposit an appropriate sum to the veterinarian providing the vaccination. ~~If within thirty (30) days of redemption, the redemptioner displays a proper rabies vaccination certificate and a billing of charges for said vaccination, a refund shall be made to the redemptioner of any excess over the costs of said vaccination.~~ The City Council shall, by resolution, set a uniform rabies inocculation fee.

REQUEST FOR BIDS

The City of Twin Falls, Idaho, will accept sealed bids at the office of the City Clerk, 321 Second Avenue East, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301, until 4:00 P.M., prevailing local time, on May 1, 1981. Immediately thereafter, all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud in the presence of the bidders in the City Council Chambers. Bidders are invited, but not required to attend the bid opening. Bids received later than the above referenced time will not be considered for award.

Bids shall consist of:

Proposals shall be prepared on forms supplied by the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, and must be accompanied by bid bond, certified check, cashier's check or cash in the amount of 5 percent (5%) of the amount of the proposal. Said bid security shall be forfeited to the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, as liquidated damages should the successful bidder fail to enter into contract in accordance with their proposal as specified in the Request for Bid.

INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS

Approximately 75 tons — Wastewater Department
Approximately 90 - 150 lbs. cylinders — Water Department
Approximately 3 tons — Water Department
Approximately 2 tons — Parks Department

The quantities shown are estimates only. The City Departments involved in this bid will not be obligated to purchase quantities shown, but will be obligated to purchase all their requirements from the successful vendor. Prices are to remain in effect for a minimum of 12 months.

Deliveries are to be made directly to the ordering facilities between the hours of 8:00 A.M., and 5:00 P.M., and the price quoted is to be F.O.B., Twin Falls, Idaho.

Orders will be placed by the ton and 150 lbs cylinders, deliveries are to be made in the appropriate cylinders.

In determining the lowest responsible bid, the Clerk's Office will consider all acceptable bids on a basis of the net price to be paid after deduction of the discount specified by the bids.

The date of delivery is an essential element of the proposal, and may be decisive in awarding the bid. Delivery of equipment shall be F.O.B., Twin Falls, Idaho.

The envelope in which the bid is received must be specifically marked:

"Sealed Bid Liquid Chlorine."

The City of Twin Falls Reserves the right to reject any and all bids, to waive any informalities in the bids received, and to accept the proposal deemed most advantageous to the best interest of the city.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Three years ago a team that included Alan Greenberg, senior partner, James Cayne, a regular partner and several other Bear-Stearns associates won the Reisinger.

Alan and Jimmy are regular weekend players in the Cavendish game and are particularly effective on their slam bidding.

In their methods three clubs would have been a force so Alan's four clubs implied slam interest and Jimmy's four hearts accepted the slam suggestion. Alan's four spades was a cue bid, but Jimmy signed off with five clubs because his heart cue bid had shown his full strength.

He won the spade in dummy and drew trumps with three leads; then he cashed the ace-king of hearts and the second-high spade and ruffed dummy's last spade to set the stage for the perfect safety play. He led his deuce of diamonds and played dummy's seven.

East was in, but was also helpless. A spade or heart would give Jimmy a ruff and discard and a diamond return would give declarer three diamond tricks.

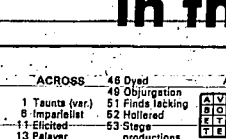

Note that Jimmy's safety play would not have been needed if diamonds had broken 3-2. Jimmy's play had just taken out insurance to guard against any and all possible bad breaks and it had paid off.
